IT'S BOMMAI

BJP goes for legacy, Lingayat and BSY loyalist | Oath-taking ceremony to be held at 11 am today | Ashoka, Sriramulu, Karjol may become Deputy CMs

ANUSHA RAVI @ Bengaluru

THE tears he shed as he announced his resignation on Monday ensured BS Yediyurappa got his man -- Basavaraj Bommai -- the top job on Tuesday. Bommai, who joined the party in 2008, was unanimously elected as leader of the BJP Legislature Party, ensuring that he becomes the next chief minister of Karnataka.

None other than Yediyurappa proposed Bommai's name, which was later backed by Deputy Chief Minister Govind Karjol. Bommai left behind other contenders like Murugesh Nirani, Arvind Bellad and CT Ravi. Union minister Dharmendra Pradhan, who was sent as an observer to the legislature party meet by the BJP Parliamentary Board, announced Bommai as the next chief minister. "This is a big responsibility. Under the guidance of chief minister (sic) BS Yediyurappa, I will give a pro-people government. I will strive hard for the welfare of farmers, poor, downtrodden, labourers and backward classes. Management of Covid and floods will be my priority. I will make an honest effort to implement all the schemes announced in our budget," said Bommai soon after his election as CM-designate.

He along with senior leaders of the party, including Yediyurappa, met Governor Thawarchand Gehlot late on Tuesday evening. Bommai will take oath as chief minister at 11 am on Wednesday. A complete revamp of the cabinet is on the cards and Bommai is expected to have a new team of deputy chief ministers and ministers.

Party sources said that R Ashoka, Sriramulu and Govind Karjol could become deputy chief ministers, while the fate of other two Deputy Chief Ministers Dr CN Ashwath Narayan and Laxman Savadi hangs in the balance as new combinations to take care of regional and caste equations are being worked out.

"I am confident that you will lead Karnataka in the path of development and fulfil the aspirations of people of the State," Yediyurappa tweeted following Bommai's elevation. As Bommai spoke to the media on his plans as chief minister, Yediyurappa stood next to him outside the gates of Raj Bhavan. "It will be my priority to implement all schemes announced by our senior-most leader Yediyurappa," Bommai told reporters as Yediyurappa put his arm around Bommai's shoulders.

Bommai's elevation as chief minister is being seen as Yediyurappa having a concrete say in party affairs. Yediyurappa's preference for Bommai has been noticed time and again with the latter's appointment as Karnataka's representative to the GST Council, appointment as home minister first and then as Law and Parliamentary Affairs minister with additional responsibility.

How BSY got his favourite man Bommai the top post

ANUSHA RAVI @ Bengaluru

TILL Monday morning, it was a tight competition between two Lingayat leaders -- Basavaraj Bommai and Murugesh Nirani – for the post of Karnataka's next chief minister. But with outgoing chief minister BS Yediyurappa backing his favourite man in the cabinet, Bommai, for the top post, the BJP Legislature Party was quick to elect him as its leader and next CM.

Bommai's elevation is being seen as Yediyurappa getting his way with the Central leadership in finding a successor. While other aspirants made multiple trips to New Delhi to lobby for the top post with the Central leadership, Bommai stayed put in the State and even denied reports of him being a candidate. TNIE on July 23 had reported that Bommai was emerging as the consensus candidate. Even as Yediyurappa was putting his weight behind Bommai, the party Central leadership was considering Nirani, Arvind Bellad and CT Ravi for the top job. TNIE had learnt from credible sources that Bommai could be the favourite, given his experience in administration, and his proximity to Yediyurappa, central leadership and RSS representatives. On the need to expedite an Opposition coalition, she said, planning has to be done in advance. "Like there is election in Uttar Pradesh, Punjab and Tripura. Like how it happened in Tripura with our boys and the issue of Dainik Bhaskar," she said

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

WEST Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday exuded confidence that a united Opposition will take shape in the run up to the 2024 Lok Sabha polls.

On her first trip to the national capital after winning the West Bengal Assembly elections, so as to catalyse early unity among Opposition parties and project herself as its natural leader, she, however, said: "Opposition unity will take shape on its own."

Fobbing off media's questions on her leading the Opposition coalition, she said, "The country will lead the Opposition, we are the followers."

Mamata's first big-ticket meeting on Tuesday was with Prime Minister Narendra Modi, after which she met a few Congress leaders. She has already lined up meetings with NCP patriarch Sharad Pawar and a 'chai pe charcha' with Congress chief Sonia Gandhi, apart from meeting her party's members of Parliament.

During the 45-minute meeting with Modi, Mamata claimed she discussed the Covid situation in West Bengal and demanded more vaccines and medicines for the state.

"I had asked for an appointment from the PM... This was a courtesy visit. Post election, following the protocol we have to meet the PM once. But I also spoke about the Covid situation. I asked him to ensure that West Bengal gets enough vaccine doses. I am not against giving vaccines to other states, but considering the population of Bengal, we need more doses," she later told the media.

She also raised the pending issue of change of name of the state, to which the prime minister said 'he will see', Mamata later informed.

While Mamata parried questions on raising the Pegasus snoopgate with Modi, she demanded that the prime minister convene an all-party meet to discuss the issue, which has paralysed Parliament. She also sought a Supreme Court-monitored probe into the spyware, though a day earlier she set up a probe panel led by retired SC judge Madan Lokur into it.

The Congress leader she met were Kamal Nath, Anand Sharma and Abhishek Singhvi. Nath claimed he had called on her to congratulate her for her poll victory.

IMF CUTS INDIA'S GDP GROWTH FORECAST

ANURADHA SHUKLA @ New Delhi

THE International Monetary Fund (IMF) has cut India's economic growth forecast by three percentage points to 9.5% for the current fiscal from its earlier projection of 12.5%, citing "lack of access to vaccines" and chances of a third Covid wave.

"Growth prospects in India have been downgraded following the severe second Covid wave during March–May and expected slow recovery in confidence from that setback," IMF said in the latest edition of its World Economic Outlook report, released on Tuesday.

For the next fiscal, however, the IMF has forecast an 8.5% growth for India, 160 basis points higher than its April forecast. The upward revision is mainly due to the low base of the previous year's growth forecast.

"Steady recovery is not assured anywhere so long as segments of the population remain susceptible to the virus and its mutations," the IMF said. It added "similar dynamics are at work in the ASEAN-5 group, consisting of Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam, where recent infection waves are causing a drag on activity".

The US is expected to register a 7% growth this year, a sharp reversal from last year's 3.5% drop and an upgrade from the 6.4% growth the IMF had forecast for 2021 back in April.

"Faster-than-expected vaccination rates and return to normalcy have led to upgrades, while lack of access to vaccines and renewed waves of Covid-19 cases in some countries, notably India, have led to downgrades," said Gita Gopinath, chief economist, IMF.

Global growth at 6%

IMF's global growth forecast for 2021 calendar year remained unchanged at 6% as upgrades in the developed world were offset by downgrades in countries that experienced renewed Covid waves, notably India

Garbage menace still haunts Garden City

While BBMP clears certain areas, places like Ejipura, Magadi Road, Vasanth Nagar continues to remain an eyesore

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

THE garbage menace has been bothering Bengaluru for long. While BBMP has cleared up certain black spots in the city, other areas are still an eyesore. This has led to citizens demanding that the Palike collect garbage twice a day or change their collection timings.

Some areas of the city like Ejipura, Magadi Road, roads connecting to RR Nagar, parts of Vasanth Nagar, black spots have become a common sight.

Why can't BBMP clear garbage?

Citizens and experts pointed out the despite there being a separate wing in BBMP for solid waste management, and the government forming a separate company for the same, the menace remains the same.

"Marshals cleared the place. Then, the BBMP hung a poster saying if anyone litters, they will be penalised. Within a span of a few days, the poster was lost under another huge pile of waste. Garbage collectors have also now given up," said Rajesh P, a resident of Magadi Road, where garbage continues to pile on.

Mallesh T from RR Nagar echoed a similar opinion. He said that the biggest problem is that when contractors are asked to clear waste, they pass around the buck and say it is not their problem to handle.

In commercial establishments in old CBD areas like Majestic, City Market and surroundings, despite garbage being collected every day, the black spots remain.

Many discussions have been held on different timings for garbage collection. Experts pointed out that garbage should be collected at night from food streets like VV Puram and from residential areas, it should be collected from 7 am to 10 am. Others suggested that given the city's waste generation, garbage can be collected twice a day as well.

Garbage menace has been streamlined

Sarfaraz Khan, Joint Commissioner of SWM, BBMP and Secretary of the SWM company told The New Indian Express that the garbage menace in Bengaluru has been streamlined to a large extent. "We are waiting for government orders to install CCTVs at strategic locations to check on littering. We are also planning on using the existing ones to prevent littering," he said.

Mailini Parmar, Solid Waste Management Round Table said, the garbage at Ejipura is back again because the dry waste collector has not been paid his dues by the BBMP. "Now, with commercial establishments opening again, littering has started at different areas. Citizen volunteers need to identify and put a stop to littering," she added.

HC TELLS BMRCL

Without NOC, no Metro work at Jakkur

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Tuesday clarified that unless the application made by Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) is considered afresh and a No Objection Certificate is granted by the State Government, the construction of an elevated metro line on the western periphery of Jakkur Aerodrome should not be undertaken. A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Suraj Govindaraj passed the order while disposing a PIL filed by advocate Ajoy Kumar Patil on the obstruction to be caused to the aerodrome, if the proposed elevated metro line work is taken up, in view of the assurance given by the government that it will adopt mitigation measures. The court directed the government to take an appropriate decision on adopting the measures as suggested in the letter written by the Director General of Civil Aviation within six weeks. Then the decision shall be placed before the committee constituted by the government for grant of NOC, along with an application made by BMRCL for the same. The committee should take appropriate decision on BMRCL's application after taking into consideration the government's decision on adopting mitigation measures, the court added. Meanwhile, in the alternative, the court directed BMRCL to submit a fresh application seeking NOC after the government adopted the mitigation measures. It also made it clear that the government can seek advice from the DGCA and Airports Authority of India. A survey by AAI, following directions, indicates obstacles to the Jakkur Aerodrome due to the proposed flyover on the National Highway.

'No major change in land acquisition status'

The Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) has earned a revenue of Rs 96,65,217 for the month of June. Metro trains had a ridership of 4,17,652, stated the monthly newsletter released on Monday. Specifying civil works carried out on different stretches, the newsletter said that Visvesvaraya Industrial Area to Whitefield had 99% of civil works complete. The least progress of all stretches has been along Reach 6, an elevated line from Kalenaagrahara to Swagath Cross Road where only 37% of works are finished. He also added that there have been no major changes in land acquisition and compensation status as compared to the previous month. "An amount of Rs 64470.84 crore has been paid as compensation so far for 3,092 properties. This includes Rs 398.48 crore for Phase 2A.

Open schools by Aug next week, experts tell govt

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA
@ Bengaluru

THE expert committee constituted by the education department has submitted a recommendation to the government, unanimously asking them to resume physical classes in schools by first week of August. This is to make up for the Covid-induced learning gap.

Members of the committee told The New Indian Express that all classes should open at the same time, but a schedule should be prepared to ensure only a few students attend classes per day. Chaired by the Commissioner of Public Instruction Anbu Kumar, the committee includes experts from the education and health sectors, and representatives of school administrations and schools development and monitoring committees.

"The plan is to hold classes for three hours a day and for three days a week for each class," sources said. In case the infrastructure is not available to resume all classes together, the plan is to start with older children - sixth standard and up. 10 days later, they can start with Class 1 to 5.

"Online classes have been able to cater to just 25 per cent of the urban population in the country," said a member, adding that the prime focus is on to start teaching students after modifying the curriculum.

They further said that bridge courses may not be helpful as they are ideal for when students miss a month or two months of school, not more than a year.

Meanwhile, the department is yet to take a decision on sports. However, while the department awaits the central government's clearance for midday meals, they are thinking of introducing dry food like chikkis.

CANCEL ONE SEMESTER EXAM, SAY PROTESTING BU STUDENTS

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA @ Bengaluru

MORE than a hundred postgraduate students of Bangalore University held a protest demanding cancellation of one examination, as exams for both the final year semesters are pending.

The students demanded that the varsity follow the University Grants Commission's guidelines, and hold only the terminal one - the fourth semester examination.

"If the university follows the government of Karnataka circular, then holding examinations of two semesters within a span of 20 days is unscientific. We demand that the university hold examinations for one semester alone, and complete it all by the first week of September," said Sithara H M, Bengaluru district president, All India Democratic Students' Organisation (AIDSO), the organisations spearheading the protest.

> If the university follows the government of Karnataka circular, then holding examinations of two semesters within a span of 20 days is unscientific
> Sithara H M, AIDSO dist president

She added that in case the university decides to hold both the examinations, then the exams will get delayed and students will be at a disadvantage as recruitment starts from October.

Vice Chancellor of BU, K R Venugopal told TNIE that students didn't write any exam in second year. "The UGC circular on holding terminal examination alone was made considering that examinations are completed everywhere. However, the universities in Bengaluru had to postpone the examinations due to the bus strike and rising cases of Covid," he said.

"If both examinations are held, students will be given sufficient time for preparations," he clarified and added that the delay maybe for only 15 days.

The students' demands will be discussed with the higher education council on July 30.

Pandemic effect: Online love possible, virtual dating the norm

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A survey by Bumble, a dating app and social networking platform, revealed that the time spent in lockdowns has allowed people to focus on what they are truly looking for while dating, giving them a renewed sense of clarity and confidence in taking control of their dating lives, as they meet new people. Through recent research, they found that people are now dating more intentionally than before the pandemic -- they're also being more honest about what they're looking for in a relationship, whether it's casual or serious.

Of the single Indians surveyed, 72 per cent think it is possible to fall in love with someone online, whom they have never met in person, while 45 per cent believe that virtual or online dating is normal in India.

The survey found that the pandemic has shaped the way single Indians are dating, especially post the second wave. With wider rollout of vaccination among youngsters, more than one in three (33 per cent) daters said they felt hopeful about dating in 2021.

"74% of single Indians surveyed feel there is a decline in negative behaviour in dating such as ghosting, breadcrumbing, catfishing, among others," the survey stated.

Bumble, in a press note, said that vaccination status is essential, and 38 per cent of daters surveyed would not go on a date or have sex with someone who isn't vaccinated. People are finding virtual dates to be a safer way to engage with someone.

Hepatitis can't wait, says WHO

"Hepatitis can't wait" is the World Health Organisation's (WHO) theme for this year's World's Hepatitis Day on July 28. The WHO has urged all countries to accelerate their efforts in eliminating the threat of hepatitis by 2030. Preventive measures like testing pregnant women to treating high-risk newborn babies, screening blood before transfusion, good sanitation and hygiene can go a long way in preventing hepatitis.

28th July: Some people are hopeful about the finding intelligent life elsewhere in the universe. On the other hand, such is the size not just of this universe, but of all other possible universes, that somewhere out there, there must be someone just like us reading newspapers just like this! Actually, Indians believed in an older, vaster universe before anyone in the West.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
What you really need is domestic security. You must feel safe and loved and nourished - and who can blame you? But, is there any way that you can offer others some support and sustenance in return? After all, life is a game of give and take.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Today's aspects are relaxed, but form a prelude to the next few days' worth of drama. You will be forced to take a lighter attitude to life than usual, and that may be no bad thing! Seize the opportunity to promote your imaginative ideas and leave practical details until later.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Interesting travel prospects are likely to arise quite soon as a result of the general wide-ranging possibilities that are coming your way. One thing is certain - partners must be taken into account. I suspect you will also have to stand up for your rights.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Smooth progress this morning could be followed by delays this afternoon and even a dramatic twist of events this evening. But the precise nature of the day's events is unclear, and you will have plenty of room for manoeuvre. But you must hang on to your financial freedom.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You're facing a social split. Should you go out with this person or that? Go to a restaurant or a movie, a club or country walk? If you think too much, you might end up doing nothing, so why not just get out and do the first thing you think of?

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You'll make quick business decisions, but don't fall into the trap of failing to weigh up the pros and cons. This is a common means by which you tend to waste money which you have spent so much effort earning. This is, perhaps, not a good week for clear thinking, but it is a fine moment for letting your imagination loose.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Today's planetary formation brings classic challenging energies to the fore, helping you to overcome recent hold-ups. It's in your interest to promote your aims as fully as possible, but try and find an unusual angle. The basic rule is - the more different the better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
You must ask yourself whether partners have really done their best. But bear in mind that any failure on their part to live up to expectations is almost certainly completely unintentional. Joint discussions are vital, for only then can you share the responsibility - and avoid taking the rap!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Make an early start if possible. There may be some trouble with machines and gadgets, but nothing you can't handle. You'll probably prefer a quiet evening in to a noisy evening out. But that may not be what you'll get! So, be prepared for all eventualities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Today's aspects challenge you to face up to a wide range of responsibilities - and cope with varied activities at the same time. If you perform well now, you'll benefit in the months to come. Oh - and feel free to put your foot down at home whenever you like.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
A series of moderate planetary aspects bring benefits to an area which has been causing problems: your home. If repairs, improvements or even a move have been held up, events should now start to move faster. In fact, everything is about to move much, much faster!

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
There's lots of excitement in the air today. Mind you, a lot of the excellent offers that are around are just froth and not to be taken seriously. Keep an eye on the facts and you'll figure out something which nobody else has ever realised before.

Dengue a new worry, could double trouble with Covid

B'luru reports 352 confirmed cases, several districts also see a spike

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru

DENGUE appears to be the new scourge, with a rise in the number of cases across Karnataka. Bengaluru reported 352 confirmed cases and several districts are also seeing a spike in cases. While the central health ministry on Tuesday warned states to take extra precautions to prevent co-infection of vector-borne diseases in the monsoon with Covid-19, blood banks fear a shortage of platelet components.

During the lockdown, there was a major shortage in blood and blood component donation. "Platelet donation is a complicated phenomenon. The best results are from Single Donor Platelet (SDP) donation which is used for dengue and cancer patients, in poison cases etc. We have very few donors coming forward, and are likely to see a desperate situation, with a huge demand for beds, if dengue cases go up in this phase," said Harsha Lakshman, general secretary, Karnataka Vidyarthi Koota (KVK).

Meanwhile, dengue cases are being reported in the districts too, and blood banks are reporting increased demand for platelets. However, there is no shortage of platelets in the districts, and in fact, some districts are sending platelets to cities where there is a shortage.

For instance, in Dakshina Kannada, Prabhar Sharma of Red Cross Society says that while people are generally reluctant to donate blood during the pandemic, in Mangaluru, the scene is different. "With good turnout of donors, we are not only able to meet the blood and platelet requirement of Dakshina Kannada, but are also sending many units of blood to Bengaluru, Davanagere and other places where there is a shortage," he said.

In Udupi district, as of July 24, 261 cases were reported, and there has an increase in cases in the past month. Dr Prashant Bhat, district vector-borne diseases control officer, told TNIE, "Because of intermittent rain, larvae breeding increases, leading to a spike in dengue cases."

While the number of voluntary donors has come down, the other reason for shortage is that only select blood banks have component separation units to retrieve platelets.

Meanwhile, Health Commissioner Dr K V Trilok Chandra said that a meeting has been held with all district commissioners, and instructions given for special surveillance measures for zika, dengue, malaria and other vector-borne diseases.

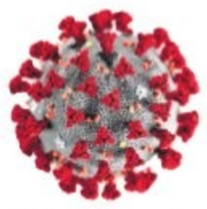
STRESSFUL TIMES

Covid played major role in heart attack cases: Docs

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru



ALTHOUGH the mortality rate for patients suffering from heart attacks has increased in comparison to pre-Covid days, medical experts claim more people have died of heart attacks due to Covid.

"There is a higher incidence of heart attacks in patients who were Covid-positive, but do not have any traditional risk factors like diabetes hypertension or high cholesterol. Even patients between the age of 20 to 25 years, who suffered massive heart attacks, have succumbed to it," said Dr N Sridhara, Senior Consultant - Interventional Cardiology, Fortis Hospitals.

Interestingly, heart attack cases increased seen mostly in May and June, said Dr Pradeep Kumar Senior Consultant - Interventional Cardiology, Aster CMI Hospital. "There was a surge in acute heart attack cases due to increased clot formation during May and June. Even younger patients suffered heart attacks," he said.

A study conducted by doctors from Sri Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research in June found that 26 patients who recovered from Covid, suffered a heart attack even after seven to eight weeks of recovery. Dr C N Manjunath told TNIE that the patients did survive with treatment.

However, Dr Abhijit Vilas Kulkarni, Consultant Interventional Cardiologist at Apollo Hospitals said though there is definitely an increased number of cardiac cases in post-Covid patients, it may not have any links to Covid. "There are a lot of other factors at play. Increased stress due to the pandemic, lack of medical care and late identification of symptoms are also responsible. Many are stressed during the pandemic. They have lost jobs and family members, there is an uncertainty about everything. Stress is a very important trigger for cardiac problems," he added.

Dr Sridhara said that in Covid patients, there is an increased risk of blood clotting in arteries, which can lead to cardiac issues.

Solutions and precautions

- Regular physical activity
- Healthy diet
- Quitting smoking, alcohol
- Yoga/meditation to reduce stress
- Do not ignore breathlessness, pain in the chest region, arm region, burning sensation in the chest, stomach

POST COVID

Even patients with mild symptoms can suffer from heart attack

If moderate to severe disease then check for D Dimer and take anticoagulants, if indicated

Stay hydrated and seek medical help if you develop chest pain, breathing issues, giddiness, burning sensation in the chest/stomach region.

On Tuesday, the state reported 1,501 new cases. Of these, Bengaluru accounted for 354 new cases. With 32 deaths, the toll went up to 36,437, while 2,039 discharges took the recoveries to 28,38,717. ENS

3rd wave fear, villagers say no to relief centres

RAGHOTTAM KOPPAR @Gadag

MANY villagers in Konnur are saying no to rehabilitation centres amid Covid scare. Hundreds of villagers were shifted after the region received heavy rain and the Malaprabha river water gushed into villages. Though the taluk administration has started a rehabilitation centre at KES High School, villagers preferred to shift to their relatives and friends' houses.

Taluk administration officials have set up relief centres, but the villagers said that they are not ready as the pandemic threat has still not gone. "We are not ready to stay in rehabilitation centres as there is a threat of the third wave and we do not want to stay in line for food again and again," they said.

WATER RIGHTS

Ashok Chandaragi, writer and senior Kannada activist from Belagavi, said Bommai was determined to get water to Malaprabha from Mahadayi. "Being a strong BJP leader, Bommai carries a secular image which is his plus point. Another important decision by Bommai was not leaving the BJP when Yediyurappa left and formed the Karnataka Janata Paksha in 2012. Bommai has experience of handling law ministry, home ministry and irrigation, and has already proved a good minister," he said.

BANSY KALAPPA & AMIT S UPADHYE
@Bengaluru/ Hubballi

THE man anointed to fill former Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa's rather outsized shoes, Karnataka's new Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai is a man with friends across the political spectrum. Well read and well educated about the issues of Karnataka, he cannot be influenced in his decision making -- that's how those close to Bommai sum him up.

Bommai studied engineering in BVB College in Hubballi, and worked with the Tata Group, besides setting up his own entrepreneurial venture. Despite being the son of a chief minister, he maintained a low profile and continued his pursuit of understanding the issues of farmers. Since his college days, Bommai actively took part in agitations.

Like his father S R Bommai, he started off on his political graph by getting water for farmers of Dharwad region. He joined the Janata Dal as political secretary to Chief Minister J H Patel, and due to his start in the Janata Parivar, he shares excellent relations with leaders of the JDS and Congress. He has worked with former PM H D Deve Gowda and former CM Siddaramaiah.

He was made MLC in 1998, and continued for a second term, and when the Janata Parivar split, he moved to the Janata Dal (United). In 2008 when Bommai left the JDU, he had two choices -- join BJP or contest on a Congress ticket. He wished to contest from Dharwad Rural and was in talks with Congress leaders in New Delhi. He had also met Oscar Fernandes, but did not get the ticket after Congress leader Mallikarjun Kharge opposed it.

It was then that B S Yediyurappa offered him a BJP ticket from Shiggaon, and there was no looking back. He won the seat with good margins in each election. Though Bommai belongs to a subsect called Sadar Lingayats, who account for a very small number in Shiggaon, he managed to win repeatedly from there.

Bommai was allotted the irrigation ministry and ensured several projects such as Mahadayi and Krishna were speeded up. He was also responsible for initiating talks with Goa to get a rightful share of water from the Mahadayi basin.

In his two-decade political career, Bommai has been an amicable but firm persona. He is on good terms with many national leaders as well. When he used to interact with late Tamil Nadu CM J Jayalalithaa on the Cauvery issue, the latter would make an exception and speak with Bommai in Kannada, recall his close associates.

His assent to prominence started in 2019 when he was given the Home portfolio and was rewarded with two more portfolios -- Law and Parliamentary Affairs. While some ministers are armed with a battery of secretaries to assist them, Bommai makes his own notes and goes through files personally. Considered a no-nonsense politician, he does not hesitate to call a spade a spade.

PREDICTION COMES TRUE

Speaking at a Mahadayi agitation in 2003, Bommai had mentioned that he has been told by an astrologer that he would become Chief Minister of the state one day, his friends recall.

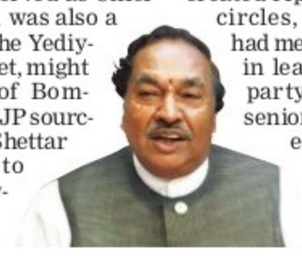
Seniors not likely to make it to new cabinet

ASHWINI M SRIPAD
@Bengaluru

WITH 61-year-old BJP leader Basavaraj Bommai all set to take oath on Wednesday as new Chief Minister of Karnataka, some senior leaders who had served in the Yediyurappa ministry are apprehensive about finding a place in his cabinet. However, turncoats are likely to be retained.

A day after B S Yediyurappa resigned as Chief Minister, the buzz is that senior ministers, including Yediyurappa's loyalists, are unlikely to be part of the new team. Central BJP leaders are keen to revamp the cabinet, and are likely to remove non-performers and some seniors.

Sources said that senior leader Jagadish Shettar, who had earlier served as Chief Minister and was also a minister in the Yediyurappa cabinet, might not be part of Bommai's team. BJP sources said that Shettar had agreed to work in Yediyurappa's team as he was much senior to him.



Sources said that RDPR Minister KS Eshwarappa might not make it either, though it again depends on the party high command's decision.

Though many leaders from the state BJP unit believe that the turncoats, who were inducted in the cabinet by Yediyurappa for helping him form the government, might get a place, it is not sure if they will be allowed to retain the same portfolios. Yediyurappa had given important portfolios to most of the leaders who had joined the BJP from the Congress and JDS. Sources in the party said that since Bommai is Yediyurappa's man, he might not remove any of the turncoats.

An audio clip, purportedly of BJP state unit president Nalin Kumar Kateel, had created ripples in political circles, as the speaker had mentioned a change in leadership and the party's plans to drop senior ministers. However, Kateel denied that it was his voice and has demanded a probe.

Siddaramaiah reviews the flood situation in Khanapur, near Belagavi, on Tuesday

Cong ready for polls if BJP govt falls, says Siddu

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Belagavi

CONGRESS leader and former chief minister Siddaramaiah said that he is not in favour of mid-term elections in the state, but is ready to face polls if the BJP government collapses on its own.

Hitting out at the BJP in Khanapur, near Belagavi, on Tuesday, Siddaramaiah said that all ministers in the cabinet of former Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa were "corrupt". "The BJP government is illegitimate as it came to power through Operation Lotus. Former Women and Child Development Minister Shashikala Jolle should have resigned after she was found to be involved in corruption, as was exposed in a sting operation by a news channel. Yediyurappa did not ask her to resign as all ministers in his cabinet are corrupt," he said.

To a question, Siddaramaiah said that being a national party, the Congress has a high command at the national level and cadres at the state, district and taluk level. The BJP, on the other hand, does not have such hierarchy, and there is no democracy in the saffron party. In the JDS, there is only one commander, he added.

"The CM is elected and expelled by the BJP central leadership. The leaders had no role to play. Do you call it democratic? The BJP never came to power with a full majority in the state, be it in 2008, 2013 or 2018," he said.

Asserting that the Congress will return to power after the 2023 elections, he said that whether or not Yediyurappa is leader of the BJP will not make any difference. "The people are fed up of the BJP government as it was almost non-functional and corrupt," he added.

We will be looking forward to a clean and honest government
Siddaramaiah, Congress leader and former chief minister

Earlier, several supporters of Siddaramaiah raised slogans of "next CM Siddaramaiah" in Belagavi, when he was set to leave for an inspection of flood-hit areas. Siddaramaiah sat in his car and left without responding to his supporters. He visited several flood-hit areas of Khanapur and Belagavi taluks.

After reviewing the flood situation, he slammed the Centre for not helping the state come out of the flood crisis.

ASPIRANTS START LOBBYING FOR CABINET POSTS

RAMACHANDRA V GUNARI & G SUBASH CHANDRA
@ Shivamogga/ Davanagere

DEPARTURE of Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa has given an option for aspirants to lobby for ministerial posts, and a few are connecting with the leadership in Delhi, to be included in Chief Minister-designate Basavaraj Bommai's cabinet.

Major contenders from Shivamogga district include four-time Teerthahalli MLA Araga Jnanendra, former minister and sitting MLA Haratalu Halappa and Sorab MLA Kumar Bangarappa. Jnanendra, a senior Vokkaliga leader, could not get a berth in the BS Yediyurappa cabinet because there were other contenders from his community, and could now stake his claim to a ministerial post.

Haratalu Halappa and Kumar Bangarappa are both from the Idiga community, which played a decisive role in increasing BJP presence in the district in the past few assembly elections. Both have had experience as ministers in the S M Krishna and B S Yediyurappa cabinets – Bangarappa served as minister of state for minor irrigation and Halappa as food and civil supplies minister. Either of them could get the post, as this community was denied a berth in Yediyurappa's cabinet. Halappa is a close associate of Yediyurappa, and this could be an advantage. All three serious contenders are making their moves to bag a ministry, source said.

Prominent aspirants from central Karnataka are Poornima Srinivas (Hiriyur), MP Renukacharya (Honnali), G H Thipparedy (Chitradurga) and B Sriramulu (Molakalmuru). Sriramulu, who is inclined towards Ballari, has not shown much interest in Chitradurga and is expected to get a bigger role in the next government.

With a huge number of OBC voters in Chitradurga, the BJP high command is expected to give a good representation for this section. Among the aspirants from Chitradurga, Hiriyur MLA Poornima has the backing of the strong Golla community, spread across Chitradurga, Tumakuru, Ballari, Davanagere and Koppal districts. Though she does not have an RSS background, she has been victorious for two terms.

On the other hand, Thipparedy is a senior legislator and septuagenarian who is trying to bag a ministry one last time.

Honnali MLA MP Renukacharya is also a strong contender, as is senior member from Davanagere SA Ravindranath, though age could be a hurdle.

Bommai acceptable to Lingayat leaders

ON Tuesday, the BJP Central leadership approved Bommai's name, anticipating anger among Yediyurappa's supporters. In May this year, TNIE had reported on how the party Central leadership was keen on an amicable transfer of power without antagonising Yediyurappa. Bommai's candidature is part of that deal between Yediyurappa and Central leadership, party sources said.

A prominent Lingayat leader, Bommai is viewed as acceptable to community leaders who had asked the BJP to replace Yediyurappa with another Lingayat. Bommai with his familiarity with heavyweight portfolios like water resources, cooperation, home, law and parliamentary affairs, is seen as an experienced hand who can manage the crises of pandemic, floods and financial constraints that are wracking Karnataka.

Chief Minister-designate Basavaraj Bommai, along with BS Yediyurappa, prepare to address the media in Bengaluru on Tuesday | VINOD KUMAR T

"The tussle for leadership had finally narrowed down to Nirani, Bellad and Bommai as the party agreed to make someone from the Lingayat community as chief minister," an aspirant told TNIE.

Party sources said that Bommai is likely to complete the rest of the 21-month term of the BJP government, but the party will go to the next Assembly polls without naming a chief ministerial candidate.

North Karnataka pins hopes of development on new CM

AMIT S UPADHYE @ Hubballi

WHILE there is a celebratory mood in Hubballi and other parts of North Karnataka, several politicians pointed out that it's time the region got its long pending due.

Several pending projects in irrigation, farming and several other sectors need a push, especially after Basavaraj Bommai, is now the Chief Minister-designate of Karnataka.

Former JDS MLA N H Konaraddi said that Bommai is well versed with the irrigation demands of North Karnataka and it's time the Mahadayi project is completed. "We hope for better development of the region," he said.

Union Minister Pralhad Joshi has said that Bommai set history as his father S R Bommai was chief minister of the state.

"Being a home minister in B S Yediyurappa's cabinet, Bommai successfully managed the post and became the new CM in the changed political scenarios. I hope the state will reach new heights in development," he said.

"It is the right decision of the party to elect a person from North Karnataka. He is a brilliant politician and knows how to handle and tackle political situations during crisis," said Vijay Sankeshwar, former MP and owner of VRL group from Hubballi.

MUSICAL CHAIRS

With Bommai, Karnataka to see sixth CM in ten years

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @ Bengaluru

AS many as five chief ministers have come and gone in Karnataka in the past ten years. The state also witnessed a change of chief ministers eight times in that many years, with BS Yediyurappa serving in the post three times since 2011. Except Siddaramaiah, none of them completed five years, while Jagadish Shettar served as CM for just 304 days.

Of the six CMs, three were from the Lingayat community and were from the BJP, two from Vokkaliga (BJP and JDS) and one from the Kuruba community (Congress).

Interestingly, of all the six CMs, two were from North Karnataka, including newly elected Basavaraj Bommai, and at both times, the BJP was in power. Yediyurappa, who became chief minister in 2008, served till 2011 before resigning. DV Sadananda Gowda and Jagadish Shettar were chief ministers between 2011 and 2013. After the Congress came to power in 2013, Siddaramiah became chief minister and completed his five-year term.

In 2018, after the Assembly polls, Yediyurappa took oath for the third time, but resigned after he failed to prove a majority. Then the JDS-Congress coalition government, headed by HD Kumaraswamy, was formed. In 2019, Yediyurappa took oath as CM and formed the government with the help of Congress and JDS rebels who joined the BJP.

After serving as CM for two years, Yediyurappa resigned on Monday. The BJP has now chosen 61-year-old Basavaraj Bommai as Chief Minister of Karnataka. He will take oath on Wednesday, becoming the sixth chief minister in the last ten years.

IN THE HOT SEAT

- BS Yediyurappa (Shikaripura)
- DV Sadananda Gowda (MLC)
- Jagadish Shettar (Hubballi-Dharwad Central)
- Siddaramaiah (Varuna in Mysuru)
- HD Kumaraswamy (Channapatna in Ramanagara)
- Basavaraj Bommai (Shiggavi)

In two separate cases, sleuths of the Central Crime Branch arrested six persons, including two Nigerians, and seized drugs such as MDMA, LSD, and cocaine worth Rs 1.05 crore.

Can SIT probe CD-gate in absence of chief, asks HC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Tuesday sought an explanation from the State Government on continuing investigation merrily into the CD-gate case, allegedly involving former minister Ramesh Jarkiholi, by the SIT, in the absence of its chief -- Soumendu Mukherjee -- who is on leave from nearly three months now.

IN THE HC

"Apart from the legality and validity of constitution of the SIT, the issue of the legality of investigation by the team will have to be considered by this court," it said, while making it clear that no investigation will continue and no final report will be filed in the case without prior permission of the court.

A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice NS Sanjay Gowda passed the order after it noticed that the investigation continued even in the absence of Additional Commissioner of Police (West), Soumendu Mukherjee, the head of the SIT, who is on leave from May 1, 2021.

Meanwhile, Advocate General Prabhuling K Navadagi submitted that there are three other senior IPS officers who are part of the SIT. The court then observed that the investigation has continued merrily in the absence of the SIT chief. "If there are other officers, then why the SIT chief was not appointed? Is it fair on the part of the state to continue investigation in his absence? Let the government explain on oath how the investigation can proceed in the absence of the chief," the court said.

In the report submitted by the Joint Commissioner of Police on July 19, 2021, to the court, it was mentioned that Mukherjee is on medical leave from May 1. Referring to this, the court said it was mentioned that Mukherjee will lead the SIT in the order passed to constitute it, which is subject matter of challenge in these petitions. Therefore, the question is that in the absence of the SIT head, could the investigation have proceeded?" the court asked, while directing the government to file a statement of objections by August 3, 2021. It also directed the government to file a statement of objections justifying the constitution of the SIT.

A 24-year-old woman has lodged a police complaint accusing her father-in-law of sexually harassing her, and also against her husband for demanding Rs 10 lakh dowry.

In a complaint filed with Basavanagudi women's police station, the woman, a resident of Subramanyapura, has stated that she was married to Harish, a businessman and resident of Koramangala, in 2016. Police have booked Harish, his parents, and sister.

7,316 missing Covid dead: Oppn takes on Kerala govt

Pinarayi defends lockdown measures, says state's situation not so bad

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ T'Puram

PUTTING the state government on the back foot, the Opposition UDF on Tuesday released the actual list of Covid deaths compiled by the Information Kerala Mission. As per the list, the state has lost 23,486 people to Covid from January 2020, while the official list released by the chief minister's office as on Monday maintains that there have only been 16,170 deaths so far.

The list provided by the Information Kerala Mission in response to an RTI query has around 7,316 more deaths than the official list.

The state has been maintaining that the Covid death certification system is very transparent and it works as per the guidelines of the ICMR.

Opposition leader V D Satheeshan said, "The list has vindicated the Opposition stand that the government had undercounted Covid deaths right from the beginning."

The Opposition's severe criticism enraged Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan who defended the lockdown measures strongly. "Why are you showing intolerance to food kits?" asked Pinarayi Vijayan.

"Around 50% of the people have been infected by the Covid virus in the state, while in many other states, it would be over 80%. So, the situation there would be relatively better than Kerala, but we have to exercise caution further," he said.

Forest patch caves in, Anshi Ghat to remain closed for few months

SUBHASH CHABDRA NS
@Anshi (Uttara Kannada District)

ANSHI Ghat, which has been closed due to landslides for the last 10 days, will remain closed for at least three to four months as a huge patch of forest has caved in and has blocked the state highway connecting Karwar and Belagavi. The district administration has sought help from the army or the state government has to address the issue.

As rain has come to a halt at present, the damage assessment has begun. Karwar will remain cut off from Haliyal, Dandeli, Dharwad and Belagavi for at least the next three months.

The landslide at Anshi Ghat | EXPRESS

The ghats will not just act as a connectivity to these places but is also a supply line of essential commodities to coastal towns of Karwar and Ankola. Essential commodities like milk, eggs and vegetables for the weekly market are transported via this stretch. The 20-km stretch which snakes through the Western Ghats has witnessed four landslides, much to the agony of the district administration. Uttara Kannada Deputy Commissioner Mullai Muhilan told TNIE, "We never expected the landslide to be of this magnitude. Initially we thought it would be a common landslide. However, as we dug further, we realised there has been immense damage in the ghats. It is even beyond our imagination. We have sought assistance from the state government. We are in the process of discussion."

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kochi

SEDITION accused filmmaker Aisha Sultana informed the High Court on Tuesday that her mobile phone and her brother's laptop seized by the Kavaratti police on June 25 had not been produced before the trial court till July 15. She alleged the devices had been sent to a forensic laboratory in Gujarat despite there being similar labs in Kerala, Chennai and Hyderabad.

Aisha said she suspected that this was aimed at planting false and dangerous materials against her.

Aisha said this in the affidavit filed in response to the Lakshadweep administration's allegation that she was not cooperating with the probe and had deleted some text messages from her phone after the island police registered the case against her. The administration filed the report opposing her plea to quash the FIR against her.

Rescue call centre to keep track of beds for animals

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

FROM now onwards, animal rescue and treatment organisations will have to share the number of beds occupied and the available ones, with the animal rescue call centre team on a daily basis.

This was one of the points discussed and agreed upon at a meeting by the animal husbandry department officials with volunteers, NGOs, veterinarians and animal rescue teams, on Tuesday.

Ever since the animal rescue call centre was launched, it has been receiving over 200 calls a day. The number of beds in the city to treat animals are around 200 and there is a need for at least 500- 600, said Suparna Ganguly, from CUPA, who was also a part of the meeting. "Sharing details of the beds and adding more will only help in improving the treatment and care of rescued animals. This is because many animals are let out on the roads after basic treatment.

The meeting was called to identify, list out and draw all volunteers, organisations and centres under one roof.

The department officials pointed that the problem is more severe in Bengaluru in rescuing and treating animals, when compared to other parts of Karnataka.

Officials to set caged birds free

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

FOLLOWING the recent orders by Animal Welfare Board of India (ABWI) to ensure that no birds are confined in cages, officials have decided to free birds from different pet stores. However, they aren't aware of the number of pet stores in the city and the state.

The members of state animal welfare board are waiting for the written order before they start their survey. The board will rope in animal husbandry department, BBMP, forest department and CID forest cell for the exercise. An official from the board under the condition of anonymity, told TNIE, "We need to conduct a detailed study before taking action. The issue needs to be discussed with ministers and even NGOs and experts."

Referring to the Gujarat High Court orders which recognised that birds have the fundamental right to fly, AWBI issued their directions. The court had acted upon a petition filed by PETA. The court had also requoted the Supreme Court order of 2014, that all animals have the fundamental right to live with dignity.

The official added that currently, not just large pet stores, but smaller ones are selling exotic birds. "Previously, we knew about endangered birds listed under IUCN are being sold at pet stores in Shivajinagar. But now, many small shops have come up, which are not easily visible," the official added. He said that despite regular raids, these stores are not closing down. The official admitted that more than wildlife, the issue becomes difficult to handle because of the religious lineage and economic issues. Thus, a holistic approach needs to be taken to address the issue.

MORE CONCESSIONS NEEDED FOR TESLA, OTHER EV MAKERS

Despite all its commitments to encouraging green technology, on the ground the government is moving at a snail's pace. On paper, there are concessions for electric vehicles (EVs), but unfortunately, these are couched in ifs and buts, crimping the growth of EV sales. Tesla, for instance, has been keen to launch in India, but wants the Centre to lower customs duty to 40%, since it is an electric vehicle. However, government policy does not distinguish between imported luxury cars of the gasoline and electric variety, and charges 60% duty across the board. Reacting to Tesla's missives, the government says it will consider concessions, provided the company sets up a manufacturing unit in India.

Looking at it from Tesla's point of view, it is keen to manufacture its EV range in the country, but probably wants to test the market with imported units for some time. The cheapest of its brands—Model 3—will be priced in the range of ₹55-60 lakh, far beyond Indian middle-class pockets. But then it's all about creating a buzz, making EVs aspirational, a change of culture if you will. Why doesn't the government look at it that way and give a leg- up to Tesla? Once people begin accepting EVs, the prime beneficiaries will probably be Tata Motors with its Nexon EV and Tigor EV brands at ₹15 lakh and ₹10 lakh; or MG ZS at ₹22 lakh.

Global warming and climate change are a real threat as the recent spate of floods are reminding us. Europe has, in recent weeks, moved its environmental targets forward, announcing it will phase out all diesel and petrol cars by 2035. India has committed to 'going electric' by 2030. However, in FY2021, we sold just 2.37 lakh units of all types of electric two-wheeler and passenger cars or just 1.3% of total automobile sales. The GST on EVs has been cut to 5% from 12% earlier, but that is not enough. We won't get anywhere at this pace. In particular, we should be boosting electric public transport vehicles as this will reduce both vehicle density and the carbon footprint.

LISTEN TO FISHERS BEFORE MOVING BILL

Fisheries along the coast of Tamil Nadu have been in uproar for over a week now, following news that the Indian Marine Fisheries Bill, 2021, might be passed by Parliament in the current session. Acknowledging their concerns, Chief Minister M K Stalin has written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, urging him not to move the Bill. Stalin has also claimed that sections of the Bill infringe on state rights.

While the fishing community has genuine concerns about the Bill, the opacity with which it has been drafted has also raised concerns. While fisher representatives have argued that the government has failed to incorporate suggestions from stakeholder consultations, environmentalists have questioned why sections on sustainability and conservation, present in earlier drafts of the Bill, have been removed. Officials have said that the previous drafts incorporated feedback from maritime states, fishers and research institutes.

In its current avatar, the Bill mainly appears focused on checking unregulated fishing in the Exclusive Economic Zone. It is the manner in which it seeks to do so that has provoked an outcry. Fisher bodies charge that the Bill treats all fishing as the same, bracketing small artisanal/traditional fishers with larger commercial operations. The fishers, regardless of their scale of operations, will have to register for licenses to fish in the EEZ. They are liable to face stiff penalties and even criminal proceedings if caught fishing there without a license. Traditional fishers say they have been forced to fish in the EEZ as the territorial waters are yielding lower catches. The Bill would further push them to the margins. Another contentious issue is that fishers can be criminalised for failing to comply with Coast Guard orders or directions. Fishers fear that this will make them vulnerable to abuse. Through these provisions, the community fears that traditional fishers will be forced out of their livelihood, benefitting corporate and wealthy ones with less sustainable practices instead. Given the valid concerns of the community, the Union government would do well to heed its voice and redraft a Bill that incorporates stakeholder views and addresses key concerns.

With the enormous physical presence of BSY clearly in the past, the BJP will face a vacuum that it will try to fill up by experimenting with many Lilliputians

WHAT'S THE BJP CIRCUS AFTER YEDIYURAPPA'S EXIT?

SUGATA SRINIVASARAJU

Senior journalist and author

SOUMYADIP SINHA

There was a fortuitous coincidence on July 26. The second anniversary of the BJP government in Karnataka fell on the same day as the Kargil Diwas. Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa, who was to quit immediately after the event, made use of the opportunity to subtly weave in the theme of martyrdom. He said we will overcome hurdles like those brave soldiers did on the battlefield. All through the address, in Bengaluru, he spoke in the royal plural to refer to himself.

BSY repeatedly reminded his audience as to how there was a time in the past for the BJP in Karnataka when it was difficult to assemble even "50 people" for its meetings. He had slogged to get the crowds to swell over the decades. He pointed out that even when stalwarts like Atal Bihari Vajpayee, L K Advani and Murli Manohar Joshi arrived, they found it difficult to assemble "400 people" to listen to them. He also reminded that there were just two members in the legislative Assembly at one time and when his other legislative colleague deserted the party, he valiantly fought alone till they reached a triple-digit mark in 2008. Continuing his masked autobiographical strain, he said he was nearly killed as a municipal president in Shikaripur, his home taluk, and when the party offered no creature comforts or cars, he cycled around to make it stand on its two legs.

BSY's focus was entirely on the physical energy that he had expended to build the party. There was no mention of intellectual or ideological issues that went into shaping it. He did not anyway subscribe to those pretensions, ever. There was no talk either of a big vision or innovative welfare ideas that he had passionately chased as a leader. He made the physical putting together of an organisation in Karnataka, his legacy. At least he made a strong claim to that inheritance, to which he is richly entitled. He is of course the only leader of the BJP, till date, in Karnataka with a deep grassroots connect.

There is no taking away from the fact that whoever has enjoyed power in the state BJP chiefly owes it to his grit, determination, perseverance, compromise and cunning. To that modest reckoning, perhaps we should add monumental levels of corruption that he allowed to make his party's pursuit of power very real. People still shudder to think as to what happened when the mining Reddys had an iron grip over him and his administration. However, BSY's contemporaries remember him as a lonely peripatetic 'mad man' who went round and round the state for years to create a semblance of a BJP organisation. In fact, he himself referred to this "mad man" imagery in his farewell speech. He said during the floods in 2019, when the central leadership had not allowed him to expand his Cabinet, he had gone around, alone, like a "mad man", helping people cope with the calamity.

Now, with this enormous physical presence of BSY in the party clearly in the past, the BJP will face a vacuum that it will try to fill up by experimenting with many Lilliputians. Metaphorically speaking, how many of them will make one Gulliver is the question. Since 2019, they have tried to create alternatives to Yediyurappa with multiple deputy chief ministers, but they have all been lacklustre and safe in his shadow. Even in 2011, when BSY stepped down after corruption charges, he was replaced first by Sadananda Gowda and later by a fellow Lingayat, Jagadish Shettar. Both did not have it in them to stand up to BSY's boundless energy and presence in the party. Shettar's appointment made an additional point—just another Lingayat will not hold together the community's vote for the party. In 2013, BSY, with his own party and a 10% vote share in the elections, demolished the BJP's prospects. All these situations will be endlessly analysed now that the saffron party has chosen another status quoist and easy-going Lingayat, Basavaraj Bommai, as the new chief minister, who looks like a Shettar replica.

In 2011, when Yediyurappa stepped down after corruption charges, he was replaced first by Sadananda Gowda and later by a fellow Lingayat, Jagadish Shettar. Both did not have it in them to stand up to BSY's boundless energy. It also showed that just another Lingayat will not hold together the community's vote for the party

So far, BSY's formula for the BJP has been to keep his community, the numerically dominant Lingayats, at the centre and weave a coalition of backwards, neglected sections of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes around it while remaining Hindutva neutral. This formula was an inverse of what Devaraj Urs had followed in the 1970s when he empowered the backwards and kept the rest in an orbit around them. The Janata Party and the Janata Dal social experiments conducted by Ramakrishna Hegde and Deve Gowda were the most inclusive. The trio of Urs, Hegde and Gowda empowered people through progressive legislations and massive development works, but BSY followed a shortcut. He empowered the various castes through their pontiffs and seminaries, which caused an incalculable regression in a state known for its high democratic quotient and progressiveness. In this regard, BSY will go down in history as a man who mindlessly applied the principles of social engineering to achieve terribly narrow outcomes.

The new BJP under Narendra Modi may not like the party to be perennially under the clutches of the Lingayats and the arbitrary leadership of its pontiffs. They have already created a consciousness in the community that the most populous sub-caste among them, the Panchamasalis, are the least empowered. They are likely to implant the internal reservation bug to reorganise the party and break the Lingayats as a homogenous voting bloc. In the process, they may club the Panchamasalis with other backward castes and Dalits, and offer an air cover of Brahmin leadership. Their deep desire may be to create a rootless wonder like Ramakrishna Hegde. Scaffolding Brahmins with backward castes and Dalits will fulfil their ideological project too. They are also looking askance at Vokkaligas, the dominant community in southern Karnataka. Whatever their circus in Karnataka, they will not find it easy after BSY.

LESSER-KNOWN SURYA TEMPLES IN CENTRAL INDIA

SAURABH SAXENA

Founder of Puratattva, a documentation of heritage sites

Surya's association with Indian culture and civilisation is eternal. Vedic literature defines Surya as an individual deity and as part of the group of solar deities. The famous Gayatri mantra pays tribute to Savitr as the divine Surya, who illuminates all, from whom all proceed and to whom all must return, and whom we invoke to direct ourselves towards righteousness. Early Puranic traditions prescribe Surya worship in domestic rites by reciting mantras, offering lotus, argya, sandal and salutation. Later Puranic traditions mention the advent of Maga priests presiding over Surya worship and the popularisation of Surya images and temples. The Samba Purana tells us that when Samba, son of Krishna, was cursed with leprosy, Narada advised him to worship Surya after constructing a temple at Chandrabhaga river. Since no Brahman was ready to accept its priesthood, Samba brought Magas, specialist Sun-worshiping priests of the Shakadvipa. Shakadvipa is generally identified with present-day Iran and Magas with the Magi Zoroastrian priests.

The later Puranas mention three ancient centres for Surya worship. The first one was at Mulasthana or Mitravana (Multan in Pakistan) on the Chandrabhaga (Chenab river). The second centre was at Kalapriya, generally identified with Kalpi (Uttar Pradesh) on Yamuna river. The third was at Mundira or Udayachala, generally identified with Konark in Odisha. Among the surviving temples of India, the famous ones for Surya are Konark in Odisha, Modhera Sun temple in Gujarat and Martand Sun temple in Jammu and Kashmir.

The earliest epigraphical references to Surya temples come from Madhya Pradesh. A 5th century CE Gupta period inscription at Mandsaur mentions construction of a Sun temple by a guild of silk weavers. A 6th century CE grant of Mihirakula refers to the construction of a Sun temple at Gwalior. Tikamgarh district preserves two ninth century CE Surya temples, one in Umri and another in Madkhera. The Umri Surya temple faces east and is built in the pancha-ratha style. It consists of a garbhagriha (sanctum sanctorum), antarala (vestibule) and mukha mandapa. Niches in the bhadra (central) offset in the south and the west have images of Surya riding over a seven-horse chariot. The karna (corner) niches have images of Ashtadikpalas. The adhishthana bhadra niches carry images of Vishnu as Varaha, Krishna and Narasimha. The antarala doorway lintel is carved with an image of Surya riding a seven-horse chariot driven by Aruna and accompanied by Usha, Pratyusha, Danda and Pingala. Images of saptamatrikas and navagrahas are also present on the lintel. A mutilated Surya image is present inside the garbhagriha.

The Surya temple in Madkhera faces east and is built over a high raised jagati (platform). Unlike the Umri temple, here we find Shaivite deities, Ganesha, Kartikeya and Parvati, in the adhisthana bhadra niches. The bhadra niches over the jangha (lower portion of the wall) have images of Surya holding lotuses and riding a chariot. The karna niches have images of Ashtadikpalas. Vishnu-dashavataras are present on various small niches around the temple. The antarala doorway has River Goddesses Ganga and Yamuna over the door jambs. The lintel carries an image of Surya with his retinue with sapta-matrikas and navagrahas. Inside the garbhagriha is an image of Surya standing over a lotus pedestal.

Sesai in Shivpuri district has a tenth century CE Surya temple in a much dilapidated condition. Unlike the above two temples, this faces west. It is built over a jagati and follows the pancha-ratha style, consisting of a garbhagriha, antarala and mukha mandapa. The bhadra niches, designed as mini shrines, carry Uma-Maheshvar in the north and Surya in the east while the niche in the south is empty. The karna niches have images of Ashtadikpalas. The doorway is exquisitely carved and differs in its sculptural programme from the above two temples. River Goddesses are present on the door jambs while Vishnu-dashavataras are present on the door bands. Surya is present over the lalatabimba in the centre of the lintel. Eleven Adityas accompanied by Lakshmi and Saraswati are arranged on either side of Surya. The beam above the lintel has Vishnu in its centre accompanied by Brahma and Shiva on either side. At the ends are Lakshmi and Saraswati.

With the advent of the Gurjara-Pratiharas, an impetus was provided to Surya worship in and around the present Madhya Pradesh region. The above three Surya temples are the representatives of Surya worship (Saura cult) during the Pratihara period of the ninth-tenth century CE. The origin of the Gurjara-Pratihara dynasty is traced to Lakshmana, who served as a pratihara (doorkeeper) to Rama. As Rama and Lakshmana were born in the Ikshvaku (or Suryavamshi) dynasty, it was natural for the Pratihara rulers to pay their due obeisance to Surya. Ramabhadra (833-836 CE) was the first Pratihara king referred to as a Param-Aditya-bhakta (staunch devotee of Surya) in epigraphs. His son Bhoja I (836-885 CE) was the greatest emperor of Northern India in the early medieval period. Though Bhoja I is referred to as a Param-Bhagvati-bhakta, him bearing the title of Mihira suggests his association with Surya. A later Partihara ruler Vinayapaladeva I is also referred to as a Param-Aditya-bhakta in epigraphs.

These temples may also serve as a link in the gradual migration of the Saura sect from western India to the eastern part, culminating in the Konark Surya temple. Further research on this may help us understand this migration better.

A self-goal by BJP?

It was disheartening to see a visibly emotional Karnataka CM break the news of his resignation. As one of this paper's reporters has rightly pointed out, it looked like an encore of events of 1990 when Veerendra Patil, the then CM, was given marching orders by Rajiv Gandhi but the Congress had to bite the dust in the subsequent polls. Many experts feel it is a tactical blunder committed by the BJP top brass. The open support given by the Lingayat seers is a debatable issue, however the manner in which Yediyurappa was eased out gives an impression that the BJP has scored a self-goal. Has the Union home minister lost his Midas touch? Uttarakhand also saw messy changeovers of CMs. Only time will tell us whether removing Yediyurappa was a wise move.

Sad state of our youth

It has been reported that a hospital in Kolkata received applications from postgraduates and engineers for posts in a mortuary for which the minimum requirement was completion of Class 8 education. Sadly the knowledge and competence of many of our educated youth are far from satisfactory. And most of them prefer to be engaged in any employment rather than try to build their own business.

With an eye on bypoll

This is with reference to Dalit Bandhu defence: Why shouldn't we seek political gain, asks KCR (July 22). Thanks to the chief minister for accepting that the numerous schemes that are to be implemented in Huzurabad constituency, which will see a bypoll soon, were based on purely political grounds. Here I am reminded of this great saying of British writer Ernest Benn: "Politics is the art of looking for troubles, diagnosing incorrectly, and applying the wrong remedies by disregarding ethical and moral principles."

Rename the colleges

Linking education with religion is regressive as mentioned in the article India under intolerant Indians (July 25). The author points out that this is not the practice in the UK or France. Colleges having the prefix of a religion is not consistent with a secular nation. Educational institutions bearing religious names should be renamed.

Began in 1815

The Hindu College in Delhi was started in 1899 long before the present-day intolerants were born. The first Western-style college in India was the CMS in Kottayam established in 1815; CMS stands for the Church Missionary Society of England.

No business as usual in Parliament, sessions adjourned multiple times

Another bill passed by voice vote, Opposition wants President's intervention in key issues

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Opposition's demand for discussion on the Pegasus spyware controversy continued to stall Parliament on Tesday, with repeated adjournments in both Houses. Seven Opposition parties wrote to President Ram Nath Kovind to direct the Centre to take up discussions on this and the farmers' issue.

Leaders of Opposition parties in both Houses held separate meetings to devise strategy to push for their demands. The government maintained that it is ready for talks, but the Opposition is not cooperating.

Lok Sabha was adjourned 10 times and Rajya Sabha five times. Opposition parties reiterated they want the Parliament to function and want an objective discussion on Pegasus, farm laws and other issues. "The government is not ready for discussion. We want a Supreme Court monitored committee to look into reports of use of Pegasus by the Centre so that the truth is known to everyone. When countries like France, Israel, Hungary and Germany are investigating the matter, why is our government not ready for it?" questioned Leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge.

Seven Opposition parties — SAD, NCP, CPI(M), BSP, JKNC, CPI, RLD — have sought the President's intervention to uphold the dignity of the Constitution of India and parliamentary rules and procedures.

In Rajya Sabha, the Centre pushed through the Marine Aids to Navigation Bill, with Opposition MPs in the well of the House. Calls for voting from CPI(M) MP Elamaram Kareem went unheard, as the bill was passed by voice vote.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi asked BJP MPs to be combative against the Opposition for disrupting the Parliament. He addressed the BJP's weekly Parliamentary party meeting and asserted that despite the government's readiness for discussions, Opposition parties were disrupting proceedings.

The BJP MPs carried forward the message to the House and the Parliamentary standing committee on IT, which they boycotted on the grounds that the chairman Shashi Tharoor was deciding the agenda without consulting the members, while also complaining to the Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla against the Congress leader.

Presiding officers in Lok Sabha sought to push the day's business amidst relentless sloganeering by Opposition MPs. In the Parliamentary party meeting, the Prime Minister also asked BJP MPs to brace for the 75th Independence Day celebrations by spending 75 days in 75 villages in their respective Parliamentary constituencies.

New Delhi: Veteran journalists N Ram and Sashi Kumar have moved the Supreme Court seeking an independent probe by a sitting or retired judge into reports of alleged snooping by government agencies by using Israeli spyware Pegasus. The petition sought to probe if hacking into the phones represented an attempt by agencies and organisations to muzzle and chill the exercise of free speech and expression of dissent.

INADEQUATE RAIN PUSHES THREE STATES BEHIND KHARIF SOWING SCHEDULE

RAJESH ASNANI, SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI & ANURAAG SINGH
@ Jaipur/Mumbai/Bhopal

AT least three states – Maharashtra, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh – have so far witnessed a shortfall in the sowing of kharif crops owing to scanty rainfall.

The worst affected is Maharashtra, where parts have received inadequate rainfall in contrast to the western parts reeling under floods. Around 30% of the state's cultivable land is used for jowar, bajra and pulses. Due to inadequate rainfall, sowing has been possible in less than 50% of the land, raising the spectre of a significant fall in its annual produce of food grains. Rain has been satisfactory in regions cultivating oil seeds and cotton, though.

Rajasthan has also witnessed wet spells of late. But this could be a month too late for those who cultivate the state's chief kharif crops — jowar, bajra, moong, maize. Despite recent showers in Jaipur, Udaipur, Bharatpur and Kota, overall rain deficit in the state is still around 30%. Nearly 25 of the 33 districts are in this category. If this does not change in the next month or so, Rajasthan might report a steep decline in its annual kharif production. According to state agriculture department data, of the 16,382 hectares for kharif for 2020-21, sowing has taken place only in 6,811 hectares, 41.58% of the targeted area.

Figures are not as alarming in Madhya Pradesh, although below target. On Tuesday, the MET department said total rainfall is 1% above normal at the moment, but 29 of the 52 districts have had below-normal rainfall. The deficit ranges from -3% to -60%. Soybean is the principal kharif crop of the state and land used for sowing this has been around 11% less than it was this time last year. According to state agriculture department data, sowing has been done on 499.87 lakh hectares this year so far, which is 16.50% less than 2020.

The kharif season starts with the onset of monsoon, usually in June-July. The harvesting season is from late September to October, with regional variations. These crops require good rainfall. Paddy, maize, bajra, jowar are the major kharif crops in India. Experts say that if the first half the season is dry, more than sufficient rainfall in the second is the last resort to save these crops.

"Till July 25, there was 33% deficient rainfall and around 60% of the targeted area has been sown. This will affect the sowing of cereals and maize. Even now if we get a good monsoon, we will be able to achieve the target. But if we don't get good monsoon, crop sowing will be impacted and there will be less production," said HL Meena, additional director of the Rajasthan's agriculture department.

Over 35% of the total cultivated land in Maharashtra is used for cotton, 30.1% for soybean and 30% for food grains. This year, food grain sowing has been done in about 48% of the land available, which is 23% less than last year. In contrast, cotton and oil seeds are near the target.

According to MP farmer leader Kedar Sirohi, the delayed monsoon will affect the state's kharif sowing pattern. "Soybean is the main kharif crop and requires ample water for proper quantitative and qualitative yield. It's raining now, but with the period for optimal sowing gone, even if farmers sow soybean now, the actual yield will be adversely affected quantitavely and qualitatively."

Increasing districts with 10% positivity a concern: Centre

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

RAISING alarm over the number of districts with Covid-19 test positivity rates of over 10% and over 20 districts reporting an increasing trend in daily cases, the Centre said it's an "area of concern."

Compared to 46 such districts between July 14-21, this number has grown to 54 this week. A majority of them are in Kerala and Maharashtra apart from the five northeastern states. Worryingly, there are 22 districts in the country which have recorded an increase in the trends of Covid-19 cases over the last four weeks.

Addressing a press briefing on the pandemic status in the country, Lav Agarwal, joint secretary in the Union health ministry, said 22 districts — 7 from Kerala, 2 from Maharashtra, 5 from Manipur, 3 in Meghalaya — are showing a rising trend in cases over a month.

As per the data shared, there are 62 districts in the country, where over 100 cases are reported every day, which are found in a localised and limited set of areas of these districts.

"Average daily new cases declined from 3,87,029 between May 5-11 to 38,090 between July 21-27. The recovery rate in the country now stands at 97.4%," said Agarwal.

India on Monday reported less than 30,000 fresh cases, the lowest in 132 days. However, 54 districts have registered more than 10% positivity for the week ending July 26.

"If we look from a global perspective, the pandemic is far from over. There is a noticeable increase in the number of cases across the world, which remains the area of concern. We have to work on containing the spread of the virus with strictness," Agarwal added.

On a positive note, VK Paul, member, health, Niti Aayog who also heads the National Expert Group on Vaccine Administration Committee for Covid-19, mentioned a study conducted on 15 lakh doctors and frontline workers in the Armed Forces Medical College who were administered Covishield.

The findings have shown that there was 93% reduction in infection during the massive second wave of the pandemic, driven by the delta variant of SARS CoV 2 while the vaccine also showed 98% mortality reduction.

Top court seeks Centre & Delhi's reply on beggar vaccination

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

TAKING grim view of the situation of beggars, the Supreme Court on Tuesday issued notices to the Centre and Delhi government on a petition seeking vaccination and rehabilitation and said it will not take an elitist view to ban begging in the wake of the pandemic.

Justices DY Chandrachud and MR Shah said beggars cannot be wished away from public places and traffic junctions. "No one would like to beg if not for poverty," the bench said, while turning down a petition to restrain begging at traffic lights, markets and public places in light of the pandemic.

The court observed that people are generally compelled to beg to eke out some elementary livelihood due to the absence of education and employment. "This is a socio-economic problem. We cannot say that they will not be allowed to beg," the bench remarked while issuing notices to the Centre and the Delhi government, seeking their response within two weeks on the prayer made in the petition for rehabilitation of beggars and vagabonds, their vaccination and providing them with shelter and food amid the pandemic.

Ministry asks states to furnish oxygen death data

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

HAVING drawn flak for denying there were Covid-19 deaths due to shortage of oxygen during the second wave of the pandemic in India, the Union health ministry has asked the states to share this data urgently, this newspaper has learnt.

In letters to states, the ministry said this should be shared before the ongoing monsoon session of the Parliament concludes on August 13, government officials said. The development comes a week after the Centre had informed the Parliament that no state had specifically reported any death due to oxygen shortage during the second wave.

In response to an unstarred question by Congress MP KC Venugopal, the health ministry said that while health is a state subject, all states report cases and deaths to it on a regular basis, as per detailed guidelines for reporting deaths. "No deaths due to lack of oxygen have been specifically reported by states/UTs," the ministry had said in its response.

Figures shared by the government on different occasions showed that while during the first wave in India, the peak requirement had been about 3,100 MT oxygen, it had crossed 9,000 MT during the peak of the second wave, when the number of active cases was nearly 40 lakh. The situation had been particularly bad in states without any production capacity of medical oxygen and far away from oxygen generating industrial units, such as Delhi.

Several countries from different continents had contributed to India crucial resources such as oxygen concentrators, PSA oxygen generation plants and tankers to meet the demand of oxygen.

The huge scarcity of oxygen during April-May prompted the Centre to sanction PSA plants in most district hospitals under the PM Cares Fund. While some of the plants have become functional, many others are in the pipeline. This, the government has said, would be necessary to meet the requirement of oxygen during the possible future waves of the disease.

Pak shifting Lashkar into Af, officials inform India

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

AMID rise in violence by the Taliban in Afghanistan, the country's government has told India that Pakistan-based terrorist group Lashkar-e-Taiba is shifting there. Since the US withdrew its troops from Afghanistan, New Delhi has been raising the issue of ungoverned territory in the warn-torn country being used by international terror groups.

According to Afghan officials, Pakistan has been attempting to shift all terror groups into Afghanistan for about a year. This comes weeks after Afghan President slammed Pakistan in the presence of Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan at the connectivity meeting in Uzbekistan.

Local Afghan reports suggest that number of 'jihadis' killed in the past few weeks in Afghanistan had Pakistani identity cards and that many Taliban fighters are being treated across the border in Pakistan.

Meanwhile, Afghanistan's top negotiator for reconciliation Abudllah Abdullah met Indian Ambassador to Afghanistan Rudrendra Tandon and thanked him for India's support in the peace process.

Welfare schemes for all Covid orphans: SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday observed that the Centre's welfare schemes should cover all children orphaned in the Covid-19 pandemic. The observation came from a bench of Justices L Nageswara Rao and Aniruddha Bose while hearing a suo motu case on the condition of children in institutional care during the pandemic.

The bench noted that government-run schemes such as PM-Cares Fund, which proposed a corpus of ₹10 lakh for each children till they turn 23, covered only those who became oprhans after losing their parents.

The court said it is studying how the children could be given immediate benefits. "The order we passed covers all children who became orphans during this period and not just due to deaths due to Covid-19."

Assam CM to deploy commandos after border killings

4,000 personnel will be sent to three districts bordering Mizoram; Sarma to approach apex court for protection of innerline forest reserve

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR
@Guwahati

Assam will raise three "commando battalions" to man the interstate border with Mizoram even as Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma said "we will die but protect our land."

"We are raising three commando battalions to protect our land in Cachar, Karimganj and Hailakandi districts. They will have a combined strength of 4,000 personnel. We don't want others to encroach upon our land," Sarma told journalists at Silchar in Assam's Cachar district. He also said that the Assam government would move the Supreme Court for status quo on the border and to ensure that the reserve forests were not destroyed by anybody.

"After Monday's incident, some civilians (in Mizoram) rejoiced as if it was a fight between two countries. The message we want to give is that we will die but we will protect our land. We are firm that we will not allow even an inch of our land to be encroached upon," Sarma said.

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma pays homage on Tuesday to the six policemen who died in Monday's clashes at Lailapur | PTI

The CM said the state sacrificed five precious lives but managed to secure its land.

"Assam does not believe in taking revenge and will not launch a counter-attack as it is not in our DNA. I cannot ask my police to fire on the Mizo civilians. Assam is acting responsibly. Despite provocation, we told the police to give security to every Mizo living in Assam," Sarma said.

Referring to some recent bomb blasts on the border and Monday's violence, he said, "How can you use bombs and bullets to settle a dispute? It is not between two countries."

The CM sniffed that some recent actions of his government could be among reasons behind the violence. "There are various activities going on in Assam. We are blocking the (fleeing) Myanmar nationals from moving towards (Assam's) Dima Hasao. We strongly suspect that there is a drug route that originates in Myanmar and goes to Punjab via Mizoram and Assam. We have cut that line by regularly seizing drugs."

Sarma said Mizoram CM Zoramthanga had favoured chief secretary-level talks and the talks took place in Delhi earlier this month. He said at the end of the meeting with Home Ministry officials, the two sides were supposed to sign a memorandum but the Mizoram chief secretary refused to sign it.

Centre calls meeting of top officials as Mizoram, Assam stick to their guns

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Guwahati

The Centre has called a meeting of the chief secretaries and DGPs of Assam and Mizoram on Wednesday in the wake of violence, home ministry officials said on Tuesday.

Union Home Secretary Ajay Bhalla will chair the meeting to discuss the sudden escalation of violence along the Assam-Mizoram border.

The meeting of the chief secretaries and Directors General of Police is expected to work on a peace formula so that there is no repeat of the violence along the border of the two states, a home ministry official said. Officials said that the central government is in regular touch with the Assam and Mizoram governments and trying to calm down the situation. They further said that CRPF has been deployed in the violence-hit area.

The chief ministers of the two states, however, stuck to their guns on Tuesday, refusing to back down from their respective stand.

> Barely two days after our meeting with the Union Home Minister, why was Assam in a hurry to send 200 policemen to the border and cross it over?

> Zoramthanga, Mizoram CM

While narrating the events leading up to Monday's violence that left five Assam police personnel dead and over 70 others injured, Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma and his Mizoram counterpart Zoramthanga played to their local galleries and hurled accusation at each other.

Sarma said the Assam government recently received inputs about Mizo activities inside an Assam reserve forest. He said satellite images showed Mizoram was building a road and erecting structures. He said during a subsequent inspection, a Mizoram Police post was also spotted.

7-MEMBER CONGRESS TEAM TO VISIT CACHAR

A seven-member Congress team will visit Assam's Cachar district to assess the ground situation after violence erupted along the border with Mizoram killing atleast five police personnel and injuring several. "A seven-member committee is to be formed with immediate effect. to visit Cachar and any other area to assess the Assam-Mizoram border dispute on the ground and the ensuing violence that has cost the lives of police personnel, amongst others," said Congress in-charge for Assam Jitendra Singh. He further said that the committee will submit a detailed report to the party on the matter. The committee includes APCC president Bhupen Bora.

ASSAM INVOLVED IN 4 INTER-STATE DISPUTES

Assam is involved in four inter-state border disputes, including with Mizoram, the union ministry of home affairs said on Tuesday, adding that inter-state border disputes can "only be resolved with the cooperation of state governments involved in the matter". Union minister of state for home Nityanand Rai told the parliament there are seven inter-state boundary disputes in India arising out of demarcation of boundaries and claims and counter claims over territories. The centre "just acts as a facilitator in such disputes", the junior home minister said, a day after violence took place along the shared border between Assam and Mizoram.

@New Delhi

The controversial Citizenship Amendment Act is not going to be implemented till Jan next year as the Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) has sought another six months' extension to frame the rules for the law that was notified nearly two years ago.

Minister of State for Home Affairs Nityanand Rai informed Lok Sabha on Tuesday that the central government has sought extension till January 9 for framing rules of CAA.

He was replying to a question from Congress MP Gaurav Gogoi on whether the government had missed the deadline to frame and notify CAA rules and the steps taken in this context.

Nityanand Rai said that the committees on "Subordinate Legislation, Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha have been requested to grant further extension of time upto 09.01.2022 to frame the rules under the Citizenship (Amendment) Act, 2019."

Constitutional experts say that the rules of a legislation need to be framed within six months of getting President's nod, it is for the fifth time that the government has sought extension for the framing of the rules.

CAA seeks to grant Indian citizenship to persecuted minorities like Hindus, Sikhs, Jains, Buddhists, Parsis and Christians from Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan. The act aims to not consider any person who has arrived in India who had come to India till the cut off date of December 31, 2014, after facing religious persecution as an 'illegal outsider'. The Act has drawn huge protests across the country since it was tabled.

Pawar slams 'flood tourism', BJP defends VIP visits

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI
@Mumbai

Criticising VIP visits to Maharashtra's flood affected areas, Nationalist Congress Party chief Sharad Pawar on Tuesday said such trips divert the focus of the local administrative machinery from rescue and rehabilitation work to attending to these dignitaries.

Pawar said the chief minister and the deputy chief minister need to visit the affected areas to assess the damage and accordingly take relief measures or policy decisions. "But those who do not have to play any role should not scramble to visit calamity affected areas. The local administration is already stretched," he added.

The former Union minister's comments came on a day Maharashtra Governor Bhagat Singh Koshyari was on a visit to flood-hit areas, accompanied by suspended BJP MLA Ashish Shelar. Taking a veiled dig at the governor, Pawar said he might help the state get more funds for flood relief from the Centre.

The Leader of Opposition in the assembly, Devendra Fadnavis, however, said such visits spur the authorities into action. "When we visit the affected areas, the local administration wakes up and starts working. Hence our visit is necessary." The former CM, along with Union minister Narayan Rane and opposition leader in the Legislative Council Pravin Darekar, recently visited Taliye village in Raigad district, where a landslide killed 84.

Shiv Sena leader Sanjay Raut also slammed the VIP visits saying people should not go to do politics and. "The flood tourism should be stopped. People should not just go to take photographs and videos," he said.

Violence never part of Kashmiriyat but became daily reality, says Prez

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

PRESIDENT Ram Nath Kovind, who is on a four-day visit to Jammu and Kashmir, on Tuesday said Kashmir provides a template of communal harmony and peaceful co-existence and violence was never part of 'Kashmiriyat' and is alien to Kashmiri culture.

Addressing the 19th annual convocation of University of Kashmir at Sheri Kashmir International Convention Centre (SKICC) here, President Kovind said, "Kashmir has been called 'Rishi Vaer', or the land of saints, and has always attracted spiritual seekers from far and wide. I feel blessed in standing on this land, which is not only a reservoir of wisdom but also endowed with unparalleled natural beauty."

Saying that Kashmir is a place that defies descriptions, he added, "Kashmir is the meeting point of various cultures. It is impossible to write a history of Indian philosophy without referring to Kashmir's contributions to it. One of the oldest manuscripts of the Rigveda was written in Kashmir."

On the age-old harmony in the Valley, President said, "Kashmir provides the very template of communal harmony and peaceful coexistence. The core nature of the place has always been inclusive. Almost all religions that came to this land embraced a unique feature of Kashmiriyat that shunned orthodoxy and encouraged tolerance and mutual acceptance among communities."

Referring to over three decades long militancy in J&K, he said, "It was most unfortunate that the outstanding tradition of peaceful coexistence was broken. Violence, which was never part of 'Kashmiriyat', became the daily reality. It is alien to Kashmiri culture, and it can only be termed as an aberration – a temporary one, much like a virus that attacks the body and needs to be purged".

Tight security arrangements have been put in place in Kashmir for the President's visit.

ASSEMBLY POLLS

RLD-SP combine looking to woo back UP Jat voters

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Lucknow

With the 2022 assembly polls just seven months away, politics has started heating up in the Jat land of western Uttar Pradesh.

Once the dominant player in the politics of the sugarcane belt of west UP, the Rashtriya Lok Dal (RLD) (which like the 2017 assembly polls and 2019 Lok Sabha polls will contest the next elections in UP with prime opposition Samajwadi Party) has started working to regain the political space lost to the ruling BJP and the Mayawati-led BSP.

Eyeing to woo back its once loyal Jat voters, who are 25% of the electorate in the sugarcane belt along with the other castes and communities, including the Gurjars, Tyagis, Brahmins and Muslims, besides the crucial Dalits, the young ex-MP Jayant Chaudhary led RLD launched on Tuesday, a series of Bhaichara Sammellans to build a rainbow of castes and communities to revive its political fortunes in the landscape once ruled by its stalwarts, including ex-PM Chaudhary Charan Singh and his ex-union minister son Ajit Singh.

The first of the series of Bhaichara Sammellans was launched from Khatauli Vidhan Sabha segment of Muzaffarnagar district, which is the home district of ongoing nationwide anti-farm laws agitation's public face and Bhartiya Kisan Union (BKU) spokesperson Rakesh Tikait.

Importantly, the Samyukt Kisan Morcha, the umbrella under which the ongoing farmers' stir is underway, has announced holding Kisan Mahapanchayat in the same Muzaffarnagar district of West UP on September 5. It has also announced to hold demonstrations across UP and Uttarakhand, including Lucknow.

Chhattisgarh Cong rift widens after min walks out

T S Singhdeo

After the recent trouble in Congress-ruled Punjab and Rajasthan, a crisis in Chhattisgarh Congress is apparently brewing after a senior Congress minister T S Singhdeo was seen dejected for being "targeted" in the Assembly over an allegation on "engineering a deadly attack" on a convoy of an MLA from his own party. The cabinet minister Singhdeo, who was earlier dubbed as the potential chief ministerial candidate, abruptly walked out of the Assembly on Tuesday amid uproarious debate saying that he will return to the House only after Bhupesh Baghel government clarified his role on the serious accusation he faces. To a query on whether the issue has been resolved after nearly a 100-minute long meeting with the chief minister at the Assembly, Singhdeo said, "That the CM will tell you". EJAZ KAISER

India, Pak revive 'sweets diplomacy' on Eid-al-Adha

India and Pakistan revived their tradition of 'sweets diplomacy' along the border on Eid-al-Adha last week. BSF personnel in Rajasthan, Punjab and Jammu-Kashmir exchanged sweets on the auspicious occasion. In Rajasthan, BSF soldiers gave sweets to their Pakistani counterparts at Munabao in Barmer district and in the border areas of Bikaner and Sri Ganganagar districts. This was the first exchange of sweets between the two forces after the Pulwama terror attack in February, 2019. This special ceremony is being seen as an enhanced confidence-building measure in the backdrop of the ongoing ceasefire. Most citizens are praying that this gesture of sweets and pleasantries will help to promote peace and harmony between India and Pakistan.

US combat mission in Iraq to conclude by year end

2,500 troops stationed still in Iraq will not engage in fight; but US military will continue to assist Iraq in its fight against IS, says Biden

WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT Joe Biden declared US relations with Iraq would enter a new phase with American troops exiting combat operations in the country by year-end as he held talks with Prime Minister Mustafa al-Kadhemi.

Amid the threat of an Islamic State resurgence and Iran's powerful influence in Baghdad, Biden stressed that Washington remains "committed to our security cooperation" while Kadhemi reaffirmed their "strategic partnership."

US troops in Iraq will "to continue to train, to assist, to help, to deal with IS (Islamic State) as it arises," Biden said. But, in a shift that comes as the United States pulls out of Afghanistan, the US leader confirmed that the 2,500 US troops still in Iraq won't be fighting.

"We're not going to be, at the end of the year, in a combat mission," he said.

Eighteen years after the US invaded Iraq to remove strongman Saddam Hussein, and seven years after a US-led coalition battled Islamic State extremists who threatened the country, Washington turned its focus to other types of assistance.

It said it would help strengthen electric power supplies, fight Covid-19, confront the impacts of climate change, and support private sector development.

Some 5,00,000 coronavirus vaccine doses pledged to Baghdad "will be there in a couple weeks," Biden told Kadhemi in the White House.

Biden also emphasised US support for elections in October in Iraq, saying Washington is working closely with Baghdad, the Gulf Cooperation Council and the United Nations to ensure the elections are fair: "We support strengthening Iraq's democracy and we're anxious to make sure the election goes forward," he said. Kadhemi said he was in Washington "to discuss the future of our nation."

"America, they help Iraq. Together we fight, fight and defeat IS," he said. "Today, our relation is stronger than ever -- our partnership in the economy, the environment, health, education, culture and more."

The face-to-face meeting, analysts said, was to give support and cover to Kadhemi, in power for little over a year and under pressure from Iran-allied political factions to push US troops from his country.

The main concern from Washington is to lend enough support to Iraqi security forces to keep up the fight against the remnants of the Islamic State group. Since last year the principal role of the remaining US troops in Iraq has been to train, advise and support their Iraqi counterparts to battle Islamic State.

But powerful pro-Iran political factions, which are crucial to Kadhemi retaining power, are overtly hostile to the US presence, and are accused of being behind rocket and drone attacks on bases in Iraq where US forces operate. AP

Death toll from Henan floods climbs to 71

BEIJING

THE death toll from floods in central China's Henan province rose to 71 on Tuesday as a tribute at a subway where 14 people died was sealed off in a sign of sensitivity to public criticism of the government's handling of the disaster.

Torrential downpours dumped a year's rain in just three days last week on the hardest-hit city of Zhengzhou, flooding subway cars and trapping more than 500 commuters during rush hour last Tuesday.

Images of passengers inundated by shoulder-height water went viral on Chinese social media. The city government announced on Tuesday the names of those who perished in the subway, a rare attempt at transparency after people started leaving flowers at the entrance to the station.

"Extreme rains caused severe water logging in parts of subway line 5, and the retaining walls that protected the subway lines crumbled," the government statement said.

Subway guards eventually blocked access to the floral tribute, but a video published by state-run West China Metropolis Daily Tuesday showed a group of people pushing aside the yellow barricades on Monday night chanting "let the spirits of those who died come back home!"

Human Rights Watch accuses Israel, Hamas of war crimes

JERUSALEM

HUMAN Rights Watch (HRW) said on Tuesday that both Israel and Gaza's Islamist rulers Hamas probably committed war crimes during their war in May, accusations that both sides rejected.

The 11-day conflict saw Hamas and other Palestinian armed groups in Gaza fire thousands of rockets at Israel, which retaliated with hundreds of deadly air strikes. HRW said it had investigated three Israeli attacks that "killed 62 Palestinian civilians where there were no evident military targets in the vicinity", interviewing witnesses and analysing data from the sites and digital imagery.

The report listed a May 10 strike in Beit Hanoun, one on May 15 at the Al-Shati refugee camp and a wave of strikes on May 16 in Gaza City as the focus of its investigation.

It noted "other Israeli attacks during the conflict were also likely unlawful". The May 10 strike hit a family as it packed barley into sacks. Eight people including six children died. HRW said it found no evidence that any were combatants, and saw no proof of a military target at the site. "An attack that is not directed at a specific military objective is unlawful," it said.

In the second attack, an Israeli strike on a three-storey building in Al-Shati killed 10 people. One resident told researchers that "there was no warning that anything would happen to our house".

Israel said it had targeted a building in the camp because "a number of Hamas terror organisation senior officials were in an apartment". HRW said no witnesses or relatives of the dead were aware of militants in or near the building during the attack.

1 dead, 16 hurt in blast at German chemical park

BERLIN

AN explosion at an industrial park for chemical companies in Germany killed at least one person on Tuesday, with 16 injured and four still missing. Fire officials who tested the air said there did not appear to be a danger to nearby residents after authorities initially urged people to shelter inside.

The explosion at the waste management facility of the Chempark site in the city of Leverkusen, near Cologne, sent a large black cloud into the air. It took firefighters almost four hours to extinguish the fire that took hold after the explosion.

Germany's Federal Office for Civil Protection and Disaster Assistance initially classified the incident as "an extreme threat." Later on Tuesday, however, the Cologne fire department tweeted that measurements of the air's pollution "do not show any kind of abnormality." .

The city of Leverkusen said in a statement that the explosion occurred in storage tanks for solvents. "We are deeply concerned about this tragic accident and the death of our employee," the head of Chempark, Lars Friedrich, said in a written statement. AP

- Bewilderment - Richard Powers
- A Passage North - Anuk Arudpragasam

- A Town Called Solace - Maya Lawson
- No One is Talking About this - Patricia Lockdwood
- The Fortune Men - Nadifa Mohamed

LONDON

INDIAN-ORIGIN British novelist Sunjeev Sahota is among 13 authors longlisted for this year's Booker Prize for fiction for China Room, a novel described by the judges on Tuesday as a 'brilliant twist' on the immigrant experience.

The 40-year-old, whose grandparents emigrated from Punjab in the 1960s, has been previously shortlisted for the 2015 Booker Prize for The Year of the Runaways and is a winner of the European Union Prize for Literature in 2017.

His novel China Room was chosen from 158 published in the UK or Ireland between October 2020 and September 2021 for the prize open to works by writers of any nationality..

"Weaving together two timelines and two continents, China Room struck us as a brilliant twist on the novel of immigrant experience, considering in subtle and moving ways the trauma handed down from one generation to the next," the Booker Prize judges note. "In crisp, clean prose, and with a dash of melodramatic action, Sahota turns these heavy themes into something filled with love.

FM: No info on cryptocurrency exchanges, users

Says, no clue if these exchanges are involved in drug trafficking or money laundering

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FINANCE Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Tuesday said that the government has no information about the number of cryptocurrency exchanges being operated in India or if the money is used in drug trafficking or money laundering.

In Rajya Sabha, MP and former Bihar deputy chief minister Sushil Kumar Modi asked about the number of cryptocurrency exchanges operational in the country and the number of investors linked to the same.

"This information is not collected by the government," Sitharaman said in her response.

She also added that the finance ministry has received no information on whether some of these exchanges are involved in narcotic drug trafficking or money laundering.

This is interesting to note as the government has earlier expressed its reservations against cryptocurrency by citing its use in money laundering, drug trafficking and even terrorism.

So far, the stance of Indian government on cryptocurrencies remains unclear. Earlier it had a stance to 'ban all private cryptocurrencies. But last year the finance minister warmed up to the idea of cryptocurrency by showing a more flexible approach. However, it is still facing resistance from its own revenue department and most importantly from the Reserve Bank of India, which had been firm on its stance regarding the virtual currency.

That was the reason the Cryptocurrency Bill, which was originally listed for the Budget session held from February to March, was not tabled at the time, causing some worries amongst the industry stakeholders. Also this session there was no mention of this among a number of bills, which is to be tabled in the Parliament during the monsoon session.

Sources from the finance ministry have added that this is "not on top of the government agenda and can wait for a few months".

According to data from independent crypto exchanges, there are approximately 1.5 crore Indians who have invested in cryptocurrencies holding worth ₹15,000 crore, with roughly about 350 startups that operate in the blockchain and crypto space.

IndiGo sees highest quarterly loss at ₹3,174 cr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

INTERGLOBE Aviation, which runs India's largest domestic airline IndiGo, on Tuesday reported its sixth consecutive quarterly loss during the three month ended June 30. IndiGo's net losses surged 11.6% year-on-year to ₹3,174.20 crore in Q1FY22, its highest ever for a single quarter.

IndiGo had reported ₹2,844.3 crore loss in Q1FY21 even as flights were entirely suspended for two months from March 25 to May 24 to curb the spread of first Covid-19 wave. IndiGo's performance in Q1FY22 signals the extent of damage second wave of Covid-19 infections had on India's aviation industry when air traffic plummeted to new lows.

Ronojoy Dutta, chief executive officer at IndiGo, said in the post-earnings call he was deeply disappointed with the results. He added increased fuel prices and second Covid wave hurt the company's performance in the quarter. According to IndiGo's balance sheet, fuel cost for the airline increased 853.7% to 1216 crore.

Dutta also informed that the airline saw its daily cash burn increase to ₹33.4 crore during the June quarter compared to ₹19 crore cash burn a day during the March quarter.

In the March quarter when passenger traffic was recovering, IndiGo had reported a net loss of ₹1,147 crore. Yields, a measure of average fare per passenger per kilometre, also fell to ₹3.48 per kilometre in June quarter from ₹3.70 on March quarter. It was ₹ 4.54 in the June quarter last fiscal.

IndiGo,'s total income for the quarter ended June 2021 was ₹3,170.3 crore, up 177.2% over the same period last year. However, it fell around a half quarter-on-quarter.

"We are seeing a measured recovery in bookings for July and August. Notwithstanding the Industry's present challenges, we remain firmly optimistic about IndiGo's future. Our entire focus during this pandemic has been to manage our cash balances, run a high-quality airline and to continue to build our capabilities and be prepared for the post covid environment," said Dutta.

JSPL eyes 50 MT annual capacity by 2030; to reduce carbon emission

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

THE recent efforts of Jindal Steel and Power Limited (JSPL) to divest its stake in Jindal Power Ltd stem from the need to reduce its debt to below ₹10,000 crore by the end of the current financial year and become a carbon compliant company.

However, all these efforts are part of its larger goal of becoming a 50 million tonne per annum (MTPA) capacity steel company by 2030.

Talking to The New Indian Express, Managing Director VR Sharma said that the total debt of the company at the start of the financial year was ₹22,000 crore, out of which so far they have repaid ₹2,700 crore.

"We are trying to divest our holding in JPL. If that happens that alone would bring ₹3,000 crore cash to the company, and liabilities worth ₹6,000 crore would also be eliminated. So, the debt would automatically come down to below ₹10,000 crore," explains Sharma.

The company recently had to face stiff resistant from investors as the board had decided to sell its 96.42% stake in JPL to Worldone Pvt, a firm owned by its promoters, for ₹3,015 crore cash, which according to a proxy advisory firm, was way below its enterprise value of ₹10,000-12,000 crore.

Worldone has revised its offer and is now offering ₹7,401 crore of which ₹3,015 crore will be payable by cash, and the balance ₹4,386 crore will be by way of assumption and takeover of liabilities and obligations of JSPL.

The MD says that for the sake of transparency the company would invite bids from other players - national or international -with ₹7,400 crore being the base price. He, however, said that Worldone would also be participating in the rebidding.

So why does the company want to exit from the power business?

"In order to realise our target of becoming a 50 MTPA (from the existing 9.6 MTPA) capacity steel company, we have to hive off some of the assets so that we do not violate the carbon emission norms. In next 8-10 years, investors, lenders and buyers will stay away from companies who violate the carbon emission norms," he elaborates.

Sharma, however, says that he wants the company to grow organically and he has no interest in buying out tiny units to expand and achieve its target of 50 MTPA capacity by 2030.

CHARGED UP DEBATE

After Tesla, Hyundai bats for import duty cut on EVs; Ola disagrees

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

DAYS after Tesla CEO Elon Musk said that import duties for EVs (electric vehicles) in India are the highest in the world and that he hopes for a temporary relief from the government, Korean carmaker Hyundai said that a rate cut would help automakers generate volumes and reach some viable scale.

"We have heard that Tesla is seeking some duty cut on imports of CBUs (completely built units)...Till the time companies are able to localise EV components and other infrastructure, EV imports could help generate some market in the country," said Hyundai Motor India MD and CEO SS Kim, while inaugurating the company's new corporate headquarters in Gurugram.

Hyundai at present sells its Kona Electric SUV (priced ₹24 lakh) in the country and is working to locally develop an affordable EV. Kona, like many other electric 4Ws, doesn't enjoy incentive under India's Fame 2 scheme and their prices here are significantly higher than other global markets. Cars, including EVs, imported as CBUs attract customs duty between 60 to 100%.

Kim said that India is ready for e-2wheelers and e-3wheelers but it will take time for e-4Ws to gain foothold. "We need some more support from the government in terms of tax and some incentives. From our experience in various global markets, such as South Korea, China and some European countries, we know that in India there still remains the anxiety related to charging infrastructure and the pricing of EVs," he said.

Hyundai's and Tesla's demand to reduce import duties was criticised by Ola CEO Bhavish Aggarwal. The entrepreneur said that he strongly disagrees with both the companies. "Let's have confidence in our ability to build indigenously and also attract global OEMs to build in India, not just import. We won't be the first country to do so," tweeted Aggarwal.

LOAN REJIG BOOSTS CANARA BANK ASSET QUALITY

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

STATE-RUN Canara Bank has managed to keep its asset quality in check with the help of the one-time settlement (OTS) process and restructuring under the RBI's Resolution 2.0 framework for Covid-19.

During the April-June quarter of the current financial year (FY22), the bank settled 89,000 loan accounts with an outstanding of ₹1,950 crore through OTS route to recover bad loans worth ₹1,300 crore. Under the Resolution Framework 2.0, the lender has restructured 3.51 lakh accounts worth ₹13,234 crore. Post these restructuring, the bank has received about ₹64 crore of payments into the account and ₹35 crore as prepayment.

An OTS entails the creditor (bank) taking a haircut on the outstanding loan amount. "Restructuring of retail, MSME, and small business has helped a lot to our borrowers and we are hopeful that in the coming two to three months there will be more and more borrowers who will be repaying the instalments even though they are not due. We have also closed 89,000 OTS proposals," said LV Prabhakar, MD & CEO, Canara Bank.

The bank's gross non-performing asset (NPA) ratio improved to 8.5% of its loan book from 8.93% in March. Fresh slippages amounted to ₹4,391 crore, or 0.69% of the book. Of the total slippages, 18-19% came in from the retail sector and around 55-66% from the MSME segment.

However, there is significant stress in the micro, small and medium enterprises (MSME) accounts which were not fit for restructuring.

Net profit jumped nearly three-fold to ₹1,177 crore in the quarter ended in June.

Flipkart moves SC against Karnataka High Court's order on CCI probe

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

E-COMMERCE company Flipkart has moved Supreme Court against Karnataka High Court's June 23 order that dismissed pleas by the e-tailers for quashing an ongoing probe by the Competition Commision of India. While the Bengaluru-based company declined to comment on its latest move, Flipkart previously told the TNIE in a statement that it is reviewing the Karnataka High Court order and will decide the next steps subsequently.

"As highlighted earlier, we have a very robust compliance and governance process and remain in full compliance with Indian laws. We will do everything to always be compliant." Flipkart Group spokesperson said. Sources said that Amazon is also likely to approach the apex court against the Karnataka High Court's order that termed the e-commerce companies plea "as devoid of merit and substance".

The division bench noted that the e-tailers should not feel shy of the CCI probe if they feel they are not in violation of the country's competition laws. The court stated that "By no stretch of imagination can inquiry be quashed at this stage" The court observed that the scheme of the Competition Act provided for sufficient safeguards for the appellants in form and appeal from the CCI's orders.

The Karnataka High Court's order resonated with the earlier remarks of Union commerce and industries minister Piyush Goyal who had stated that the foreign firms should not avoid probes by the law agencies if they feel they are in full compliance with the laws of the land. Goyal added that during the discourses with some of these big firms, he sensed arrogance on their part due to the deployment of huge capital at their disposal.

The 45 days long proceedings went on in the Karnataka High Court after the Supreme Court had directed the latter to decide on the matter.

20 lakh tonne sugar to be diverted to ethanol

Sugar mills earned `22,000 crore during the three preceding sugar seasons: 2017-18, 2018-19 and 2019-20, Union Minister of State for Food and Consumer Affairs Sadhvi Niranjan Jyoti told the Parliament

Sugar mills likely to earn ₹15,000 cr due to more ethanol blending

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

THE Union government's push to increase the blending of ethanol in auto fuels is set to result in increased revenues to cash-strapped sugar mills. In a written reply to the Lok Sabha, Union Minister of State for Food and Consumer Affairs Sadhvi Niranjan Jyoti said that sugar mills are likely to earn as much as ₹15,000 crore revenue from the sale of ethanol to oil marketing companies during the current sugar market year (December-November).

This is a significant increase when compared to the previous years, where, according to the minister's reply, sugar mills earned ₹22,000 crore in total during the three preceding sugar seasons: 2017-18, 2018-19 and 2019-20.

The minister noted that excess sugar stock of 60-70 lakh tonnes has kept ex-mill prices of sugar low, resulting cash loss to mills. A cascading effect has also led to increasing cane arrears to sugarcane farmers on the part of sugar mills.

"In order to find a long-term solution to deal with the problem of sugar, government is encouraging sugar mills to divert excess sugarcane to ethanol which is blended with petrol, which not only serves as a green fuel but also saves foreign exchange on account of crude oil import," Jyoti said.

The amount of ethanol being procured by oil marketing companies has grown manifold over the past few years. In the last two sugar seasons (2018-19 and 2019-20), about 3.32 lakh tonnes and 9.26 lakh tonnes of sugar respectively were diverted towards ethanol production. During the current sugar season 2020-21, the government expects more than 20 lakh tonne to be diverted.

Last month, the Union government advanced several ethanol blending targets, which sent sugar mill stocks soaring-some stocks even hitting upper circuits on June 7.

Kirloskar family feud: Brothers' firms spar over 130-yr-old legacy

PTI @ New Delhi

KIRLOSKAR Brothers Ltd (KBL), led by Sanjay Kirloskar, on Tuesday accused four firms under his brothers Atul and Rahul of trying to "usurp" its legacy of 130 years and trying to mislead the public, which has been refuted by the other side.

As the family feud simmers, KBL in a letter to capital markets regulator Sebi claimed that recent press releases by Kirloskar Oil Engines Ltd (KOEL), Kirloskar Industries Ltd (KIL), Kirloskar Pneumatic Company Ltd (KPCL) and Kirloskar Ferrous Industries Ltd (KFIL) "have sought to usurp the legacy" of KBL.

Also, they attempted to pass off the legacy and track record of KBL as that of their own, the letter said.

When contacted, a spokesperson of Kirloskar Industries Ltd (KIL) said the letter by KBL to Sebi "contains a large number of factual inaccuracies and misstatements." "Nothing contained in the entire press release even remotely makes any reference to KBL let alone "attempting to pass off the legacy and track record of Kirloskar Brothers Limited as that of their own"," the spokesperson added.

On July 16, five firms led by brothers Atul and Rahul Kirloskar had announced a 'refresh' exercise of their respective businesses, with an eye on evolving from engineering-led firms into customer-focussed solution providers.

Torrent Gas heralds CNG retail biz in Chennai

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

NATURAL gas major Torrent Gas has opened up the Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) market in Chennai, the only metro in the country where CNG and petroleum natural gas (PNG) was not available on retail so far. The opening up of the retail CNG market in Chennai makes it possible for CNG vehicles to more easily ply in the city — especially for commercial taxi operators, a segment which is predominantly powered by CNG in locations such as Delhi-National Capital Region where strong CNG pump infrastructure exists.

On Tuesday, 25 CNG stations and 1 City Gate Station of Torrent Gas was inaugurated by Tamil Nadu Chief Minister M K Stalin. Torrent Gas also announced that it is planning to spend ₹5,000 crore in Tamil Nadu towards the creation of CNG stations and city gas distribution (CGD) infrastructure to bring piped natural gas to domestic, industrial, and commercial customers and setting up CNG stations.

Torrent Gas has been authorised by the Petroleum and Natural Gas Regulatory Board (PNGRB) for establishing and operating CGD network and providing CNG and PNG in 33 districts across 7 states and 1 UT. There were only 12 CNG stations in the entire state of Tamil Nadu until now.

"Access to Compressed Natural Gas, which is a cheaper and cleaner alternative to petrol and diesel has been a felt need of the people of Tamil Nadu. Widespread availability of CNG and significant savings will encourage consumers to adopt it, thereby having a positive impact on the environment," Stalin said in a statement.

Torrent Gas has priced its CNG offerings at a competitive level, at ₹51.35/kg for CNG in Chennai and Tiruvallur - the second lowest CNG price in the country after the NCR region. At this price, the adoption of CNG as a fuel will help customers in Chennai save up to 66% vis-a-vis petrol, 61% vis-ā-vis diesel and 42% vis-ā-vis Auto LPG. CNG prices are also much more stable as compared to those of petrol and diesel, which undergo frequent changes, Torrent said.

Sensible to review marijuana ban: Coe

World Athletics chief Sebastian Coe on Tuesday backed calls to review the status of marijuana on the list of sport's banned substances following the suspension of US sprinter Sha'Carri Richardson. Coe said it was "sensible" to look at the question of whether marijuana should remain on the World Anti-Doping Agency's prohibited list. Rising sprint star Richardson was expected to be one of the faces of the Tokyo Games after a series of blistering 100m displays earlier this season.

Chinese teens win diving gold

China stretched their remarkable 100 percent Olympic record in women's synchronised 10m platform diving thanks to two fearless teenagers. China came into the Tokyo Games hoping for a clean sweep of diving golds, but they were stunned by British duo Tom Daley and Matty Lee on Monday. Normal service was resumed however as Chen Yuxi, who is just 15, and 17-year-old diving partner Zhang Jiaqi romped to a comfortable gold with 363.78 points at the Tokyo Aquatics Centre.

Bermuda gets first gold via triathlon

Bermuda has been sending athletes to the Olympics since 1936. Until Tuesday, the Atlantic island's highest honour was a bronze medal won 45 years ago. Flora Duffy changed that in just under two hours, swimming, cycling and running through the wind and rain around Tokyo Bay to win the Olympic women's triathlon for Bermuda's first gold medal. A self-governing British overseas territory with a population under 65,000, Bermuda has only two athletes competing in Tokyo: Duffy and men's rower Dara Alizadeh. It is the smallest contingent Bermuda has ever sent to the Summer Games.

Turkmenistan gets off the mark

Sparsely populated and isolated from most of the outside world, Turkmenistan has finally won its first Olympic medal since independence from the Soviet Union. Weightlifter Polina Guryeva won a silver medal for the Central Asian nation at the Tokyo Games on Tuesday, and then predicted she would go down in the country's history. "I was in shock because it's the first Olympic medal in the history of the Turkmen people," she said.

SHOOTING PAIN

There's no reason to be sad or to overreact, says High Performance Manager Ronak

INDRANEEL DAS @ Chennai

SPORTS is a strange vocation. The pressure of failure is more than success, especially for big stars. Indian shooters were expected to win medals at the ongoing Tokyo Olympics, but until Tuesday, there was none. Whether you are 19 like Saurabh Chaudhary and Manu Bhaker, or 40, pressure shows no mercy. After a consistent performance over the last few years, the two have been the biggest medal hopes for India. Call it pressure or luck, the two failed to advance to the medal round, finishing seventh in the mixed event on Tuesday.

Sabre is out and critics are baying for blood. High Performance Manager Ronak Pandit, who is also in charge of the pistol shooters, is well aware of it but feels there is no need for a knee-jerk reaction. The team, Saurabh and Manu, in particular, have shot better than their average scores. Ronak felt the issue is there was no medal to show. While speaking with the The New Indian Express from Tokyo, Ronak spoke about the challenges the teenagers faced and what next. Excerpts...

How do you evaluate the team's performance?
As far as the pistol team is concerned, I'm quite happy with their performance. Yes, they have missed out on a medal but their efforts and their points have been satisfactory. In pistol, four out of five have shot and one event is yet to happen. Out of the four, favourites were Saurabh and Manu. Saurabh entered the final in the 10m air pistol and that too after topping the qualification round. Manu almost made the final, and was in contention until the last shot. I am not sad with their performance. I feel sad because those performances did not result in medals. Given the conditions and situation, they both did very well. There is no reason to be sad or to overreact. Even Abhishek, until the last series, was expected to be in the final. Out of four shooters, one made it to the final and the other two almost made it. And this is the Olympics we are talking about. Everyone has come with proper preparation. The whole world is here and are performing at their peak. And the fact that we have first-timers at the Olympics, it says a lot about them.

So do you think Indians, too, had peaked?
All of them were shooting well. Saurabh, especially, has been very good and topped his qualification with 586. Tuesday, he had shot 490 out of 500 in the three stages. He is shooting at an average of 588. So if he is shooting at an average of 586, 588, he is in the peak of his form. Manu almost qualified, shooting in half the time allocated to her despite so much of distraction and nervousness due to equipment failure. She still managed 577. Despite issues with the gun and being a debutant at the Olympics, she has given her average score.

Even in Rio, the scenario was the same. India had World No 1 but could not bring home a medal. Thoughts...
When you look at Rio, only Jitu Rai had a very good average score coming into the Olympics. But if you look at this group, everyone has good scores. So this is a better team. That is why we have so many shooters doing well with some even with a real chance to enter the final.

Is lack of consistency & ill-luck hurting the team?
You take this as an example. There are 10-15 World Cups a year and you are winning four-five medals. So you are not winning in every World Cup. But there will always be another where you can win one. But Olympics is only one, that too, in four years. So it's not easy.

Would you like to say something on what the NRAI president said today — about complete overhaul of the system, including coaches?
We definitely need to change the structure of our training. I have been discussing this with the federation. We should analyse our performance in terms of scores. The pistol shooters have been scoring what they were scoring earlier. I don't think there is a need for a knee-jerk reaction but yes, some kind of analysis will help. How we can improve in the Olympics can always be discussed.

Split with coach Jaspal could have impacted Manu: NRAI president

ANMOL GURUNG @ Chennai

HOW things can change so fast. Not long ago, Indian shooters were the toast of the nation, and rightly so. Medal after medal, they were in a happy space, the entire team comprising shooters from all age groups and coaches seemed to be one happy family. Barely four days into the Tokyo Olympics, the mood in the camp has changed dramatically.

Medal prospects before the start of the Games are being labelled as failures now. Barring Saurabh Chaudhary, the shooters have been unable to get anywhere close to their old happy state. Tuesday was another low as the Indians flopped again at the 10m mixed team events — both pistol and rifle. Saurabh and Manu Bhaker finished seventh while Yashaswini Singh Deswal and Abhishek Verma finished a distant 17th. Just an hour later, rifle shooters Elavenil Valarivan, Divyansh Singh Panwar, Anjum Moudgil and Deepak Kumar also missed out.

National Rifle Association of India (NRAI) chief Raninder Singh, who was following the events in Tokyo, was far from impressed and questioned the performances, baring skeletons in the closet. Manu, who had entered the Games as one of the hot favourites, had stopped working with Jaspal Rana not so long ago. It was clear that something was not right. Crossed with the poor showing of the shooters so far, Raninder felt the issue between Manu and Jaspal could have affected the former's performance.

Elavenil Valarivan consoles Divyansh Singh Panwar | PTI

"Before Croatia...during Delhi World Cup, there was a lot of internal wrangling amongst pistol coaches. That was addressed to all by me. I had written an eight-page letter prior to the team leaving for Croatia. I cannot speak for individuals, we have honoured all our coaches, all our ex-athletes. It was I, who brought him to the programme. If for reasons, best known to him and the athletes concerned, if they are unable to work together... I can't dictate," he said.

He revealed that he tried twice to become the peacemaker between Jaspal and Manu, including her parents before and after the Delhi World Cup in March. "When you are involved in build-up to the Olympic Games as the head of the family, you have to maintain peace. They didn't get along. The girl cited something, the parents cited something. Jaspal, in his defence, cited something," Raninder said.

Manu, who is currently working under high performance manager Ronak Pandit, had narrowly missed out on the finals after facing issues with her gun in the women's 10m air pistol event. "But all this is not Jaspal's fault. I can certainly say all this might have had an impact on Manu."

It's likely this Olympics could be final outing for some coaches as Raninder said he's looking to make changes. "The performances have not been on expected lines and I have spoken of an overhaul of coaching and support staff as I feel something is lacking in getting our shooters prepared for these big occasions because clearly the talent is there and we have seen it here as well."

Simranjeet Singh (centre) scored a goal for India in their 3-0 win over Spain on Tuesday | PTI

Indians get much-needed Spain balm

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Chennai

THERE is something soothing about a 3-0 victory. It suggests a no-frills, professional performance. An assured win with a clean-sheet to boot. For those who did watch India vs Spain early on Tuesday, the only thing reassuring was the scoreline. 3-0. Most of the 60 minutes were the opposite of reassuring. One could argue that Manpreet Singh & Co. were actually lucky to walk away with the points.

Spain dominated most of the important underlying metrics — shots (16 to 10), corners (7 to four), circle penetrations (17 to 14) — as well as shading possession (52 to 48).

India did well to score twice in the first quarter as they showed no hangover from the 1-7 loss to Australia a couple of nights ago. A long diagonal found its way to Simranjeet Singh and he showed composure to finish from close range with a minute for the first stanza to finish. A minute, three penalty corners and one penalty stroke later, Rupinder Pal Singh made it 2-0.

As the sides went in for the first break, it looked like they had the match in control and could think about racking up the goals to improve their goal difference. What followed, though, was a 101 on how not to play the sport.

Spain, a highly technical side having their fair share of dribblers, grew into the game. India stood off them. Pretty soon they lost control of the game. If the first 15 was a nice relaxing drive on the highway, the next 30 or so minutes was like navigating through rush hour traffic. On another day, Spain could easily have sounded the board with at least a couple of their efforts. Custodian PR Sreejesh too played a part in successfully diverting all six goal-bound efforts in this 30-minute period.

Just to ram home a disjointed performance, India didn't look settled even after Rupinder's second, a fine penalty corner, in the 51st minute. They conceded several penalty corners after that but Spain's set-piece arrangements let them down repeatedly.

After the game, coach Graham Reid was pointed in his assessment. "A lot of things to work on from an improvement perspective," the Australian said. "The fact that we gave too many corners, that's always a concern when that happens. But the team did really well in terms of defending PCs. The first quarter was played very well, we could move the ball really well and it was exactly what we planned to do. I think 2-0 is the worse score in hockey because after that we were relaxed and we struggled a bit in the second and third quarter to get back into the game."

They are currently second, two points and as many places ahead of their next opponents, Argentina (Thursday). The Latin Americans may be the Olympic champions but they are a shadow of that 2016 side. India should really beat them. If they do beat them, they will likely finish second in the group and advance to the quarterfinals. For the time being, they cannot afford to look that far forward. Against Argentina, they will look to get back to the basics.

Emotional homecoming for Mirabai

Mirabai Chanu gets emotional after meeting her mother in Imphal

AGENCIES @ Imphal

IT was an emotional homecoming for newly-crowned Olympic silver-medallist Mirabai Chanu, who broke down on meeting her mother here on Tuesday before being felicitated by Manipur chief minister N Biren Singh at the airport.

Much like the reception at the Indira Gandhi International Airport on Monday, Chanu was met with media frenzy at the Bir Tikendrajit International Airport here.

A strict training regimen after the Rio Games had limited Chanu's visits to home for the past five years. Chanu, who won the silver medal on Saturday, was seen hugging her mother Saikhom Ongbi Tombi Leima and her father Saikhom Kriti Meitei with tears rolling down her face as security guards formed a ring around her. The now famous gold earrings, shaped like the Olympic rings, that Chanu sported at the Games were a gift from her mother who sold her own jewellery for them five years ago.

GIVING IT ALL

Long cuts short battling Sharath's campaign in third round

AYANTAN CHOWDHURY @ New Delhi

PRIOR to reaching Tokyo, India's No 1 ranked paddler A Sharath Kamal had vowed that this would be his best-ever tournament. In a career spanning over a decade-and-a-half, that was quite a bold call. But it ultimately proved to be right as he pushed legendary Chinese paddler and defending champion Ma Long all the way, ultimately losing 1-4 but winning admirers with his gutsy display on Tuesday.

The Chennai athlete is 39 at the moment but he himself admitted that he felt like he was 19. The World No 32 did not have the best of backhands, something he has admitted to in the past. But on Tuesday, nobody would make that assessment. In the second and third game, the Chinese legend was struggling and if not for the crucial break in the third game, the result could have been even tighter. The match ended 7-11, 11-8, 11-13, 4-11, 4-11 in the Chinese's favour in 46 minutes.

"I felt the best I have ever felt, both physically and mentally. The draw ended up being the biggest factor. The kind of form I showed today, I could have beaten any other player," Sharath summed up his performance on the day.

Not many athletes are able to play at the highest level at this stage of their career. But the Padma Shri awardee not only is playing the top level, but is thriving and even improving on aspects of his game not many would have thought possible. And that inevitably leads to the question: what next?

While the multiple Commonwealth Games gold medallist does not have a definite answer at the moment, the kind of responses he received post his third round encounter has floored him. "Initially, after the match got over, there was a feeling of regret — I had him cornered but couldn't capitalise.

Sharath Kamal against Ma Long | AP

But once I checked my phone, the kind of messages I saw, it made me emotional and truly flattered. I'm feeling good, need a short break to recharge my batteries, spend some quality time with my family, and then decide," he added.

Even though Sharath does not admit it, but his mind always travels to the sport he has been a flagbearer of for the nation. Even when he mentions rest, he invariably ends up mentioning the upcoming Asian Championships, the Worlds and the Commonwealth and Asian Games. Not to mention the fact that a lot of youngsters in the domestic fraternity look up to him.

"The main thing at this stage is to probably pick and choose events. But whenever I play, I need to perform at the peak of my powers. The sport is on the rise back home and each time I pick up the paddle, I have a responsibility towards my country and everyone who looks up to me. There are many important competitions lined up and if I do continue, I need to prepare the same way as this time around."

One should not doubt Sharath when he says all this. Without any proper tournament exposure, foreign training stint and just a couple of national camps, the Asian Games bronze medallist has proved he can still cut it with the best. Who knows what the future holds.

Quiet the Games

Dutch officials slam quarantine conditions

AFP @ The Hague

THE Dutch Olympics federation will meet the International Olympics Committee (IOC) to discuss "unacceptable" quarantine conditions for its athletes who have tested positive for the coronavirus, a top Dutch official said Tuesday.

Six Olympic team members, three among the Dutch rowing squad, have tested positive and are currently in isolation "under very poor conditions," Dutch technical director Maurits Hendriks said.

"These people have already lost their Olympic dream... and are now pushed into a worse situation," Hendriks told a press conference in Tokyo.

"We will raise this with the IOC on the highest level and have also asked our ambassador to raise this in Japan," he said. Hendriks said the Dutch federation had received no reply from Olympic authorities ahead of the Games about quarantine protocols "and if you see where they are now, it's completely unacceptable."

"The most important thing is that at no point they're allowed to see daylight, or even get a breath of fresh air. They have to remain inside and there's a problem with the food... and small spaces," Hendriks said. The Dutch team, meanwhile, has beefed up its anti-corona measures, the NOS public broadcaster said.

'MORE TO LIFE THAN GYMNASTICS'

Superstar Simone Biles cites mental health concerns for decision to withdraw mid-competition from women's team final

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Chennai

GYMNASTICS superstar Simone Biles was forced to withdraw from the women's team final 'to focus on my mental health and not jeopardise my health and wellbeing'. In a heartfelt, tearful post final mixed-zone exchange with the world media, Biles, widely tipped to be the face of the Games, became candid. "At the end of the day, I have to do what's right for me and focus on my mental health and not jeopardize my health and my wellbeing," she said.

"Because at the end of the day, we're human too so we have to protect our mind and our body rather than just go out there and do what the world wants us to do... there is more to life than gymnastics."

Coming into the Games, Biles was expected to debut the hard to master Yurchenko Double Pike on the vault. Instead, she preferred to open with the Amanar, her first and only routine in the final before she walked off backstage with the US team trainer. However, while mid-air, she dumped the routine. She didn't stick the landing. She was awarded a score of 13.766, the worst among the six athletes who did the vault in the first rotation.

She did come back out to the arena in a few minutes but soon withdrew from the rest of the event. USA had conceded an advantage in the vault to Russian Olympic Committee (ROC), an advantage that ROC did not relinquish for the rest of the night to win their first ever gold in this event. This is the first time US didn't win gold since 2008.

That, however, became a sidenote as the four-time Olympic champion took the media through the pressures that an athlete goes through. "I just don't trust myself as much as I used to," she said, flanked by her US teammates. "I feel like I am also not having as much fun. That just hurts my heart that doing what I love has been taken."

She was visibly in tears when she said this.

Even if it sent shockwaves across the sporting fraternity, the 24-year-old has been relatively open about these issues. After completing the preliminaries on Sunday, an Instagram post revealed the pressure she was feeling. "It wasn't an easy day or my best but I got through it," she wrote. "I truly do feel like I have the weight of the world on my shoulders at times. I know I brush it off and make it seem like pressure doesn't affect doesn't affect me but damn sometimes it's hard hahaha! The Olympics is no joke. But I'm happy my family was able to be with me virtually they mean the world to me."

At the end of the day, I have to do what's right for me and focus on my mental health and not jeopardize my health and my wellbeing.

Simone Biles, American gymnast

Voice for change

In fact, she had contemplated retiring from competitive gymnastics before staying on 'to be a voice, to have change happen'. In an interview she gave in April, she had said: "I just feel like everything that happened, I had to come back to the sport to be a voice, to have change happen. Because I feel like if there weren't a remaining survivor (she was one of the victims of the horrific abuse at the hands of US Gymnastics team doctor Larry Nassar) in the sport, they would've just brushed it aside. But since I'm still here, and I have quite a social media presence and platform, they (US Gymnastics) have to do something. So I feel like coming back, gymnastics just wasn't the only purpose I was supposed to do."

As for her immediate future at the Games — the women's all-around final on Thursday — the US athlete is undecided. "We're going to see about Thursday (the women's all-around final). We're going to take it a day at a time and see what happens," she said.

No home advantage for ousted Osaka

AFP @ Tokyo

JAPANESE tennis star Naomi Osaka conceded the pressure of trying to win an Olympic gold at home was a "bit much" after a 6-1, 6-4 defeat to Marketa Vondrousova ended her title dreams on Tuesday.

Osaka, who lit the Olympic cauldron and was one of the faces of the Games, struggled in an error-strewn display that blew the draw wide open after the earlier exits of World No 1 Ashleigh Barty and third seed Aryna Sabalenka.

"How disappointed am I? I mean, I'm disappointed in every loss, but I feel like this one sucks more than the others," said the four-time Grand Slam winner.

Asked what went wrong, she replied: "Everything – if you watch the match then you would probably see. I feel like there are a lot of things that I counted on that I couldn't rely on today."

The third-round defeat follows a turbulent few months for Osaka, who abandoned her French Open campaign in May after refusing to attend press conferences, citing the need to preserve her mental health.

Osaka also skipped Wimbledon, saying she had been battling depression and anxiety, before returning in Tokyo for her first Olympics, including her starring role at the opening ceremony.But ultimately the sky-high expectations placed on the world's highest-paid female athlete proved tough to handle.

BADMINTON

So near yet so far for doubles pair of Satwik and Chirag

ANMOL GURUNG @ Chennai

THE life of a sportsperson can be harsh. Chirag Shetty and Satwiksairaj Rankireddy found out the hard way at the mother of all events: the Olympics.

In their first Games, the duo did what they could. They won two matches out of three, beating more-fancied opponents in the process. That process included posting a straight-game (21-17, 21-19) victory against Ben Lane and Sean Vendy of Great Britain in their Group A encounter on Tuesday.

But that turned out to be their last match. Before they entered the court to play their third match, their fate had been sealed as the other match in the group had put them out of the equation. Chinese Taipei's Lee Yang and Wang Chi-Lin, whom Indians had shocked in the opening match, pulled off a big win, beating the World No 1 pair of Marcus Fernaldi Gideon and Kevin Sanjaya Sukamuljo of Indonesia.

That meant three teams were locked on two points. The Indians missed out after the number of games won was taken it consideration. The top two, who advanced to the knockouts, had pocketed a total of five games each while the Indians had won four.

Monday's straight-games setback against the Indonesian pair had been a tough lesson for Satwik and Chirag. That eventually proved to be the difference-maker.

Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty won 2 out of 3 matches | AP

Chirag was understandably emotional. "We knew the moment Lee Yang/Wang Chi-Lin won, we didn't stand a chance. They won in two games and we won in three. It's quite sad. Even after winning two matches in the group, we don't go through. But that is badminton and we have to live with it," the 24-year-old said.

Though disappointed, Satwik put up a brave face and said that they'll look to build on this experience.

"Because of that, we went into it thinking this was going to be our last game in the Olympics. So we weren't under pressure. We kept it simple. But it was disappointing to see the Indonesians lose (just before we went on). I feel that we have learnt so much from this experience and there are a lot of positives to take home," the 20-year-old said.

The youngsters are not the first from the country to suffer this heartbreak. Nine years ago, Ashwini Ponnappa and Jwala Gutta had missed out after being level on points on with two other teams in the group stage. They had exited after in-points won over the matches was taken into account.

It's a hard truth to accept for the Satwik and Chirag pair, but the good news is that they have age on their side. Having given a good account of themselves doing what they love, they can return home with their heads held high.

Bengaluru FC accused of ignoring Paartalu by PFA

ENS @ Bengaluru

THINGS are not looking good between Bengaluru FC and Australian midfielder Erik Paartalu. The Professional Footballers Australia (PFA) has come out with a statement, stating the club are excluding the player, who has one year left in his contract, from training and ignoring requests for return arrangements. BFC is currently preparing for AFC Cup playoff match against Eagles FC.

The PFA, body that represents Australian footballers, issued a statement: "..Disappointingly, the club is currently excluding him from training and ignoring his repeated requests for arrangements to be made for his return. Any suggestion that Erik has simply not reported for training, or that he is purposefully absent, is incorrect."

However, in May at Male where Bengaluru were set to play an AFC Cup playoff match, three players/staff reportedly breached Covid protocols. A photo of the report showed Paartalu too. Following which, the game got cancelled and club owner Parth Jindal had promised to take strict action.

Amidst all the gloom surrounding us, cricket legend Rahul Dravid has been a bright spot. Here's why

THE WALL OF FAME

EXPRESS FEATURES

LIFE has been uncertain due to the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic. The Indian economy is unstable with the GDP numbers declining. People have lost jobs, and the cost of living has also increased. Tens of thousands of lives were lost, especially during the second wave.

Closer home in Karnataka, there's been political turmoil, incessant rainfall in parts of the state causing flood, and a looming third wave, has pushed everyone to their limits.

Amidst all this gloom, cricket legend Rahul Dravid has been a bright spot. The current depth of the Indian team has been praised by all and sundry and the Bengaluru man deserves a fair share of credit. Earlier in the year, India defeated Australia Down Under in a Test series, which was devoid of big names, including Virat Kohli and some senior bowlers for latter part of the series. But inexperienced players, Shubman Gill, Mohammed Siraj, Washington Sundar among others stood tall to help India win. Dravid had played a big role in shaping their career when he was the head coach of the India A and U-19 teams. When praise came his way, Dravid did not take much credit.

"He is a gentleman, on and off the field. He's disciplined and focussed, and still a brilliant student of the game," said Dodda Ganesh, former India and Karnataka cricketer. Applauding the former cricketer's attitude, Ganesh said, "Dravid does not allow anyone do wrong things and will straightway speak to the person."

That is Dravid 'The Wall' for you. He will stay in the background and allow his players to be in the limelight. It is this kind of personality, which has helped him become one of the most respected figures in world cricket. He is there when the team needs him the most. Recently, Dravid, the head of NCA in Bengaluru, was asked to lead an inexperienced Team India as the coach in the ongoing Sri Lanka series, and he delivered with a win in the ODI series. It was his first assignment as a coach with the senior national team.

Having seen players grow under him, Dravid backs the player's ability despite the pressure

The best moment came in the second ODI in Colombo when India were staring at a defeat while chasing 276 runs to win last week. The promotion of Deepak Chahar above Bhuvneshwar Kumar proved to be a masterstroke with the former playing a match-winning innings and Dravid was behind the move. Having seen players grow under him, he backs the player's ability despite pressure.

Importantly, he knows the importance of giving players an opportunity to showcase their talents and this was manifested when India played their third and final ODI on Sunday. He handed five international debuts, something unheard in cricket circles. Though India lost the match, he brought smiles on the faces of those players who earned their maiden blue cap.

Former India and Karnataka player Vijay Bharadwaj, who shared the dressing room at the domestic and international level with Dravid, threw more light. "Dravid has played a major role, but there are others also who have done their bit. A soothing effect he has on youngsters is that he keeps calm and guides them," Bharadwaj said.

Dravid's contribution is mainly in the preparation, work ethics and stuff like that. Rahul believes a lot in helping them on the mental aspect of the game. The preparation, how to control your emotions, how to overcome failure - he works on them. That is very important

DO you ever feel the inability to do something you love – be it art, music or the written word? Do you feel a barrier within that restricts you from being creative? Creative blocks can happen to anyone and it can come from anywhere. It's perhaps the most dreadful phase for a creative professional to get stuck in. It is not just frustrating but it can damage one's career too. Apparently, it restricts you from accessing your creativity thus impacting one's physical and mental stability. There are a host of reasons as to why these blocks surface, some being illness, anxiety, self-doubt among others.

"I have found that creative blocks most often sort themselves out if I give them enough time. If I encounter a block in one art form, I usually don't engage with it more than I need to," says Sangeetha Alwar, a freelance illustrator. When asked about how she deals with these blocks she says, "I usually work on something else during that time. I read or paint traditionally and sometimes even cook." Alwar also engages herself in "automatic drawing", where she closes her eyes and scribbles on a piece of paper and then, tries to make a design out of it. According to her, the biggest enemy is the "worry". "Trying to forcefully get past a creative block only pushes you deeper into it. Rest and recuperate, work on other skills, and just try to ease yourself back in," she adds.

Preetika Parashuraman, a journalism student in Bengaluru, says that she encounters blocks when she's not confident about what she's going to write, especially when the deadlines are tight. It is an uphill task when she has to force herself to think creatively, and the added pressure of meeting the deadline is not helpful. She says, "I read short stories or long-form articles, listen to a podcast while I am out for a long walk, or I write about my day. Sometimes sleep really helps."

Nikhil Pillai, a dancer, says that being stuck in the same environment makes it hard to be creative. The 20-year-old from Bengaluru has tried to counter creative blocks, but his methods work differently each time. "I go on random walks and listen to music I've never heard before without thinking about dance and something just hits me. I try to meet new dancers and practice with them, and try different dance forms that I don't usually practice to get some ideas and attempt to incorporate them into hip hop," he says, when asked about how he tackles his creative slumps. "Sometimes all I need is a little break from dance. And when I get back, it's all good," he adds.

So, if you're unable to get into that creative groove, don't worry. Give yourself some time and while you do that, have fun with your art.

FIT BIT

ARDHA PURVOTTANASANA

(CRAB OR REVERSE TABLE POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'ardha' means half, 'purva' means front of the body, 'ut' means intense, 'tan' means stretch and 'asana' means pose. It is a beginner-friendly yoga pose. It makes the body supple and serves as a preparatory pose for more advanced poses. It strengthens the shoulders, arms and wrists while promoting heart and lung health. It also strengthens the core and helps relieve physical stress.

STEPS

- Start in Dandasana, sitting with your legs straight in front of you. Bend your knees so that both your feet are on the ground. Leave some space between your hips and the feet. When you raise up, your knees would be in a 90-degree angle.
- Place your hands behind you on the mat, shoulder-width apart, fingers pointing towards you, and lean back.
- Inhale, lift your hips while you are pressing firmly onto your hands and feet. Straighten your arms, keep knees at a 90-degree angle, and thighs and torso parallel to the floor. Your wrists should be directly underneath your shoulders. Move your shoulder blades close to each other, and open the chest. Keep your neck neutral. Relax the buttocks and keep the pose only with the strength of your legs. Hold the pose for 4-6 breaths, and release the hips back to the ground. Come back to Dandasana.

BENEFITS

- Strengthens the muscles of chest, neck, abdomen, pelvis, back, hips, legs, arms and spine.
- Stimulates visceral organs along with better functioning of the glands.
- Improves the flexibility of the wrists, shoulders, neck, lower back, hips, and knees besides self-expression.
- Develops love and compassion.
- Promotes forgiveness.

LIMITATIONS

- If you have an injury on the wrists, shoulders, neck, rib cage, back, hips, knees, ankles, or are recovering from a surgery of the abdominal organs, hips, back, heart, etc., avoid this.
- People having a history of hypertension, heart-related issues, arthritis, osteoporosis, severe back pain or carpal tunnel syndrome, should avoid this.
- People with conditions related to thyroidectomy should avoid this.

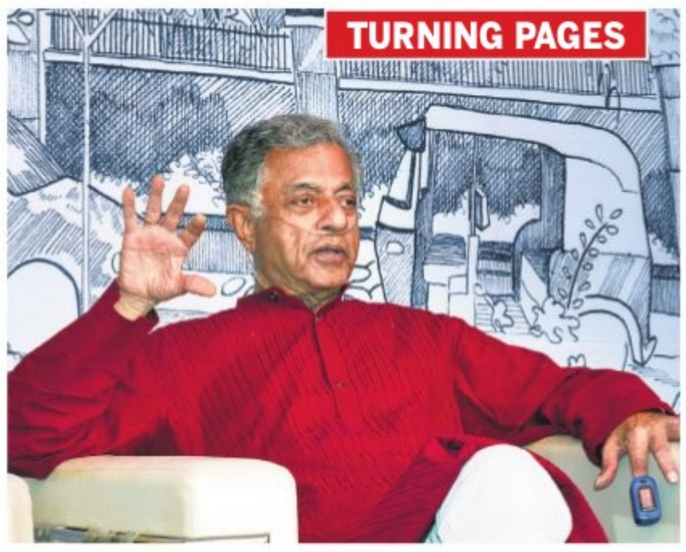
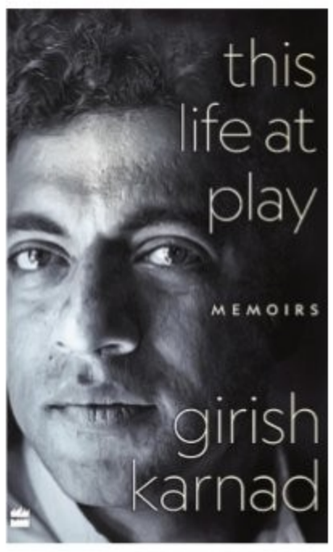
'THE SAME POEM FELT CHILDISH AFTER A FEW DAYS'

TURNING PAGES





The evolution of my artistic sensibilities seemed to begin the instant I set foot in college. I could experience this myself from day to day. The novel I had read and adored a week ago would start to feel ordinary. 'At last, I have written a good poem,' I would congratulate myself, but the same poem felt childish after a few days. It was the kind of feverish stimulation that the poet Adiga described as 'Everywhere the hand extends - a switch, a switch.' Going to the library became a cause for anxiety. It was like stepping into a minefield: there was no telling where a new bud might sprout, when a lightning bolt might strike.

One day, a classmate held out a book and said, grumbling, 'I borrowed the book thinking it would have a good story, but this.' It was BC Ramachandra Sharma's Elu Suttina Kote. I sat down at once to read the poems. On another day, I was looking at books through the glass pane of a bookcase when I saw on a spine the name Frost. I drew the book out of curiosity, and was immediately transported by the poems. Robert Frost remains one of my favourite poets to this day.

Similarly, I began to read a book called A Key to Modern British Poetry after it caught my eye in the library. It was by a then-unknown writer named Lawrence Durrell. He wrote that the scientific advances of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries had changed what lay at the heart of poetry, and that it was impossible to write poetry any more without responding to the world that science was opening up. He described with examples how poetry had been transformed by the work of scientists like Einstein, Freud, Darwin and others. Durrell would go on to make a name for himself as a novelist. When I was at Oxford, copies of The Alexandria Quartet were invariably found on every student's bookshelf. But I have not to date met anyone who has read or even heard of A Key to Modern British Poetry. In addition to its bold ideas, I also benefitted from the writers it quoted. It brought to my attention Eliot, Dylan Thomas, Freud and others, and made them part of my consciousness.

My four years in college can be bookended by two great poems. In the first year, I had read the poems in my English textbook even before classes began and marked the ones I had found difficult. So, when Gokak asked in class, 'What poem should I teach today?' I immediately said 'Kubla Khan' (for which my classmates cursed me later). Gokak nodded gravely. He started with Plato, expounded upon Beauty, Truth and Goodness as philosophical concepts, and went on to explain how the early nineteenth-century Romantic poets incorporated these ideas into their work. 'Kubla Khan' had come to Coleridge in an opium-induced reverie, and Gokak unlocked for us the magical world hidden in it. I grew obsessed with the poem after he taught it. In the next three years, I translated it thrice into Kannada.

When I was in the fourth year, my friend Kitti-Krishna Basrur-who was in the MA course, brought news that VM Inamdar was about to teach 'The Waste Land' in his class. I had begun looking up to Inamdar when he taught us The Mayor of Casterbridge. He brought Hardy's Wessex to life as if it were all happening on a stage in front of us. The story, in which tragic characters grapple with fates that toss them about, made my hair stand on end. In his classes, one had a chance to feel the throbbing heart of a novel. Gokak, on the other hand, had a greater affinity towards poetry. I don't recall ever having heard him speak of modern novels with any enthusiasm. His sensibilities, too, were of the Romantic period, and he regarded Shelley as the greatest of poets. Inamdar's teaching of 'The Waste Land' took me by the hand and led me to the modern. I recalled Gokak's warning that Eliot was a difficult poet. But now, he was mine.

Reading and re-reading an iconic magazine

The last issue of The New Yorker of 2019 dated December 30 was titled 'Cartoon Takeover'. When the iconic magazine was founded, in 1925, by journalists Harold Ross and (his wife) Jane Grant, it was envisioned as a comic weekly. Amusing drawings have been its hallmark right from its inception. Soon, Ross was noting that everybody talked of The New Yorker's art - its illustrations - and it was being described as the best magazine in the world for someone who cannot read!

For many in India who grew up in the pre-liberalisation days, to get a copy of The New Yorker was a rare treat, often made possible by a friend or relative returning from the US. My own initiation as a reader was somewhat embarrassing because I did not understand most of the articles and ended up skimming through the easy ones. With some issues I just looked at the cover (which was always the highlight) and read around the interesting cartoons inside.

The magazine's cartoons have won over millions. If you're a fan you can choose from books of compiled illustrations, depending on how deep your pockets are. The latest book came out in 2018 as The New Yorker Encyclopedia of Cartoons: A Semi-serious A-to-Z Archive, a two-volume collection selected by Bob Mankoff with a foreword by editor David Remnick.

But if you want the whole shebang and would like to feast your eyes on almost a century's worth of cartoons, invest in the 2006 paperback The Complete Cartoons of The New Yorker edited by Mankoff. The word paperback is misleading because the tome weighs a couple of kilos! It contains only 2,000-plus cartoons but it comes with a DVD that contains 70,363 illustrations! Mankoff writes: "We examined every single page published since 1925 to ensure that that not a single cartoon was missed."

The New Yorker cover is such a standout that few would be able to resist Blown Covers: New Yorker covers that you were never meant to see, a selection of the most controversial covers, some of them bordering on the outrageous. The artists have shared their process and the previous iterations of the artwork that set phones ringing and letterboxes overflowing. No subject is off the table when they choose topics for their satire, which include religion, sex, war and disasters.

We have our very own Bengaluru connection to The New Yorker in Akumal Ramchander who 'discovered' an unknown New York artist, Harold Shapinsky, in 1985 and was the subject of a tongue-in-cheek essay, 'A Strange Destiny', by staff writer Lawrence Weschler in the magazine's "Reporter at Large" section.

Regular readers have their favourite sections they look forward to every week, whether it is 'The Talk of the Town', which gives vignettes of life in the Big Apple, or 'Profile', a genre that has been shaped by The New Yorker. Profiles are not just interviews but complex portraits of individuals. Fiction is another staple. A whole host of illustrious American writers have contributed short stories to the magazine. I got introduced to the short stories of John Cheever when, thanks to my wife, I discovered an interesting and easier way to read - by listening to podcasts. The Crossword is another highlight; solving it is a bedtime ritual for my wife.

As David Sedaris says, "If there is a problem with Esquire, the issue could be with the magazine. If you find a problem with The New Yorker, the problem is with you."

Indian publishing to be ₹800 bn industry by 2024: Report

India, which has the second largest publishing infrastructure among the developing countries next only to China, is expected to see this grow to ₹800 billion by 2024 from ₹500 billion in 2019, a new report from EY Parthenon said. Though there is a paradigm shift towards the adoption of digital media, print books currently dominate (90 per cent) the publishing landscape in India. According to industry participants, digital formats account for a very small share or 8-10 per cent of the market. However, e-books and audiobooks are expected to be critical growth drivers and have a promising future in the industry. -IANS

THE TECH BARRIER TO VACCINES

As you read this column, I assume you've taken at least one dose of the vaccine. For most of us, the vaccination process was fairly simple. One has to register their phone number on the Cowin website, then select a slot and vaccine of choice. All one needed then was to turn up at the vaccination center with proof of identity. When I got my first jab, I remember thinking how smooth this process was, how this would have been a nightmare in other times.

But reality is often stranger than fiction. Out of curiosity, I Googled vaccine penetration in the country, and the results are shocking. Only about 3 per cent of India has been fully vaccinated, and only about 20 per cent have gotten a minimum of one vaccine. It was then that my privilege hit me like the stench from an overflowing, urban lake. What seemed a breezy process for me was a technological barrier to most Indians.

Of course, this isn't the first time the government has garnered the power of technology to solve an issue. Decades ago, my board exam results were to be declared on the internet. Since my parents knew nothing about computers or the internet, I'd lied that I needed to surf the web every day to check for the results. This was when I dipped my toes in the murky waters of pornography. By the time the results came out, I honestly couldn't care less about my marks; so transfixed was I by badly photoshopped images on the web.

And then there was the legendary IRCTC website. Children of today will not truly appreciate the adventure of booking a train ticket a decade ago. The IRCTC website was created by the gods to test human patience. Without modern apps and sites, IRCTC was the only platform to get on the railway platform. But the site was so slow that technology often upgraded from 2G to 3G before your ticket was booked. The government would announce new trains on your route before your ticket was booked. Time would pass, and new children would be born in families before the tickets were booked. But one didn't dare refresh the page for fear of the site crashing. For by the time the page reloaded, you were a different person with a different worldview.

For those who went through the dark ages of IRCTC, the Cowin app is a laughable barrier. But when I asked the people around me, I found that most people found the process too complicated. Our maid hadn't registered on the site, neither did the genial Darjeeling man who sells momos near my house. Most of them are first-time internet users, and do not have access to a computer or laptop. Their mobile phones are usually used for work, and pausing to do something xelse on the phone could result in a loss of work or sales.

I usually end my column with a joke, a callback, or a completely made-up quote. But I have no such thing to offer this week. If you know someone who isn't as fluent with technology around you, try to get them registered on the Cowin site. Ironically, India has for decades been running the most efficient immunisation programme in the world. Millions of Indian children have been administered the polio drops for years, in a system that had no dependence on technology. But since the entry barrier for vaccinations is technological, it would be a nice thing to do - especially while living in a city that's famed for its information technology revolution.

POST Gaalipata 2, director Yogaraj Bhat has a line-up of some interesting films. We earlier reported that he is teaming up with producer BC Patil for a film, and now, the director is set to helm another movie with his favourite actor Anant Nag in the lead role.

Tentatively titled Pundaleeka, the film will also have a newcomer, who will be making his debut as a hero. Bhatru, who is looking forward to begin this film, has approached a new producer to back the project. He says. "It is an interesting film, and only Anant Sir can do justice to the lead role. I am excited to start the project. The name of the hero and other actors will be announced soon."

Yogaraj Bhat, who has worked with Anant Nag from Mungaru Male days, says that he is a knowledgeable and rare talent. "There are a lot of traits in Anant sir that make directors like us want to work with him. It's a pleasure directing him," says Bhatru.

Meanwhile, Yogaraj Bhat is busy editing Gaalipata 2 post which he plans to resume shooting. The film, bankrolled by Ramesh Reddy, stars Ganesh, Diganth, Pawan Kumar, and Anant Nag in prominent roles.

"Anant Nag sir is playing a Kannada teacher in the film, and watching his performance at the editing table has been a blissful experience," says Yogaraj Bhat, who added that Anant Nag's role is vital for the entire second half of Gaalipata 2.

Many leading faces of Sandalwood have been campaigning to make Anant Nag win Padma Awards, and Yogaraj Bhat is one of them. "The entire Kannada film fraternity has pitched his name for Padma Awards including me and the team of Gaalipata 2," he says.

A FEEL-GOOD FILM ON SURROGACY WITH SOME PROBLEMATIC TAKES

AVINASH RAMACHANDRAN

AT a crucial juncture in Mimi, Kriti Sanon's titular character faces an insurmountable legal hassle. The perennially genial Bhanu Pratap (a brilliant Pankaj Tripathi) comes in support of Mimi and loses his temper for the first time: "Mimi is not alone. We are all there with her." This holds good not just for the character but the film itself. Laxman Utekar's second Hindi film is mounted on a bunch of important social issues that get ticked one after the other, some more effective than others.

Mimi (an assured Kriti) is an aspiring Bollywood starlet from Rajasthan who needs to earn quick money to jumpstart her career in the city of dreams. Bhanu is a cab driver who asks her to be the surrogate for a US-based couple, John (Aidan Whytock) and Summer (Evelyn Edwards). A few funny exchanges later, Mimi, who is convinced by the benefits of the arrangement, agrees to Bhanu's proposal. A wonderful couple of AR Rahman songs, crackling chemistry between Mimi, Bhanu, and Shama (Sai Tamhankar), and a fun few montages later... the proverbial hell breaks loose. Interestingly, the reason for the primary conflict isn't Indian society being conservative, but the Western couple in question.

It is an impressive choice to see surrogacy treated in a lighthearted fashion in a film set in a world where this term is relatively unknown. However, this choice has its demerits too, as Mimi feels too nonchalant for its own good. Similarly, writers Laxman and co-writer Rohan Sharma do a decent job of reining in the melodrama to avoid Mimi becoming melodramatic. However, Mimi ends up becoming too stoic for its own good. It's a constant deterrent that the film doesn't seem to be able to hit the sweet spot between nonchalance and melodrama.

The earnest performances help. Kriti, who exhibits a lot of spunk in her sprightly avatar, hits almost all the right notes in the emotional sequences.

MIMI
Director: Laxman Utekar
Cast: Kriti Sanon, Pankaj Tripathi, Manoj Pahwa, Sai Tamhankar
Streaming on: Netflix

Pankaj gets to show us once again how he can add freshness, despite playing the good-hearted simpleton yet again. The supporting cast of Manoj Pahwa, Supriya Pathak, Sai Tamhankar, and Atmaja Pandey effortlessly keep us engaged too. It is a film filled with largely good people, and that is not a problem at all. The inconsistent writing, however, is. In some scenes, Laxman and co-writer Rohan Shankar, hit it out of the park, but then, the same efficiency cannot be found in other portions. The easy resolutions to some really wild conflicts don't help either. A family patriarch who accuses his daughter of besmirching the family reputation becomes accommodative in the very next scene. A beautiful Hindu-Muslim solidarity scene gets followed by garden variety Islamophobia. An overarching lesson on the various facets of motherhood exists in the same film as anti-abortion sensibilities. These contrasting choices get in the way of this otherwise feel-good film.

RATING 2.5/5

Also, I wasn't particularly sold on how a particular revelation about the unborn child's health is treated in the film. Or how an afterthought of a message gets shoehorned into the film. AR Rahman's music and the performances left me fighting tears in the last act, but that's just saving grace.

All this isn't to say that Mimi is a bad film. It draws smiles and laughs, and an overall sense of comfort pervades its 132-minute runtime. However, the messaging gets uncomfortable. Just like Laxman's previous film, Luka Chuppi, Mimi too barely scratches the surface of the big issues it takes on. It is hard to make peace with a movie that has such problematic takes, even if it's fairly entertaining.
